Many Doubt LBJ Will Run In '68

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is increasing speculation among Democratic liberals in Congress that President Johnson may not seek a second elective term in 1968 — an idea not widely shared among political pros as a whole.

But although the idea of Johnson's voluntarily stepping down seems far-fetched to veteran tacticians of both parties some of those in the vanguard of the critical assaults on Johnson's course in Viet Nam are telling each other it could happen.

Indications Given

They base their belief on these premises:

That despite an enlarged U.S. military commitment the unpopular war is likely to drag on into the presidential election year without any definitive signs that it can be ended successfully.

That what they think is voter disillusionment with the president's current policies is likely to bring a Republican resurgence in this year's congressional races that will make it considerably more difficult for Johnson to obtain cooperation from the legislative branch.

Finally, that Johnson might prefer to leave his landslide victory of 1964 and his domestic leadership since as a watermark on history rather than to risk the kind of razor-edge victory by which Woodrow Wilson won a second term in 1916.

Ignoring Advice

The liberals are reluctant to concede it but their current fury over the manner in which Johnson has ignored their advice on Viet Nam probably has influenced the assumptions they are making.

On the other hand, a frequent White House visitor said that Johnson prefaces many of his selling talks on projects for which he is seeking congressional support with the statement that "I am not a candidate for anything, I'm not running for office."

No vice president who succeeded to the top job has ever had a second elective term. Theodore Roosevelt rejected the idea but later changed his mind. (Continued On Page Eleven)

Thousands Affirm U.S. Stand

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Thousands of persons, their patriotism undampened by drizzling rain, cheered Saturday the nation's fighting role in Viet Nam in a giant rally without comparison since World War II.

"Let us consult our courage — and not our fears!" said Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the keynote speaker. The rally, "Affirmation: Viet Nam," was called to express support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

The crowd that streamed into Atlanta Stadium despite the rain was estimated at 10,000 by Col. Lowell Comer, director of the state Department of Public Safety. Some of the organizers of the rally put the estimate at 15,000.

Humphrey Reassured After Viet Nam Visit

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey said Sunday that his trip to Viet Nam was "the most reassuring visit" of his life.

Humphrey said it had been a "real delight" to see the plans unfolding toward the real goal in Viet Nam and to discover "the fine leadership here."

The vice president presented a group of American pacification officials to newsmen and said he had received encouraging reports from them all on the progress of the war and the reconstruction program.

Program Aims

Humphrey said the Vietnamese program had three main points:

—1. That major forces of the allies confront the major forces of the Viet Cong and defeat them in major battles.

—2. That regional and popular forces, the militia, follow through and provide additional security by clearing out the remaining groups of guerrillas.

—3. That rural construction teams be introduced in retaken hamlets to carry out social, economic and political programs.

Humphrey said he had been told that current programs were sound and that there was hope that the government could carry them out.

The vice president then left for the airport and a salesman's tour of Asian countries as a sequel to his efforts to spur social and economic development here.

On to Thailand

The first stop is Bangkok, Thailand.

Thailand is an American ally and Humphrey said he will confer there with "good friends of the United States." Neutrals and allies — Laos, India, Pakistan, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand — are others on the list.

Humphrey told newsmen there has been tremendous progress in the military phase of the Vietnamese war, but only a beginning has been made in the struggle against poverty, disease and illiteracy.

Following up a forecast of eventual victory on both fronts, he gave this appraisal after his second day of helicopter-touring the area around Saigon. He visited American and allied military camps, a provincial hospital and a refugee agricultural settlement.

Humphrey pinned Silver Star medals for gallantry on nine Army heroes at his first stop, the U.S. 1st Infantry Division headquarters northwest of this city.

Speaking to American officers lined up on a sun-baked plain, he said: "We're too strong to be afraid and too determined to be defeated."

"Have Momentum"

In a similar vein, Humphrey told his news conference that the allies — United States, South Vietnamese, South Korean, New Zealand and Australian — have momentum.

"They are on the offensive and on the attack," he said.

With obvious admiration, he said the American troops he met in the field are "the most noncomplaining" anywhere, anytime in history.

"They know why they are here, they are good fighters, and they are acclimated," Humphrey said.

Supply and port problems are being met, Humphrey said, and "in the months ahead I would say the logistics problem will be eased."

Concerning the other phase of the struggle, he said that on his tour "I will have no hesitation to speak to any country of the need" for assistance in the medical field.

Rush to Aid

Observers from Congregational, Methodist and Catholic congregations were at the service, which ended abruptly amid gunfire. Many of the congregation screamed and broke for the doors. Others rushed to help the two fallen men when they realized what had happened.

The 59-year-old rabbi was conscious when admitted to Sinai Hospital. He was shot through the left forearm and behind the left ear. Dr. Harvey Gass, chief of neurosurgery at the hospital, said the bullet smashed part of the skull, pushing it "into the brain cavity and tearing important structures."

Tells Reds Not To Try Captives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department publicly warned Communist North Viet Nam Saturday not to stage criminal trials of captured American servicemen.

Some 60 American fliers—34 Air Force and 26 Navy—are now believed in Hanoi's hands. Another 46—30 Air Force and 16 Navy—are listed by the U.S. government as missing but presumed alive. Their exact status is unknown.

North Viet Nam has been hinting that it may treat the Americans as common criminals because no formally declared state of war exists between North Viet Nam and the United States. Hanoi maintains that the U.S. airmen have committed barbarous acts against humanity with their bombings.

In Cairo, the daily newspaper Al-Ahram said the Hanoi government had decided to put American pilots imprisoned in North Viet Nam on trial as war criminals.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the State Department had no official information confirming the Cairo report.

McCloskey also repeated his statement of last September that "any action on the part of the Hanoi regime to hold so-called war crimes trials against Americans who are prisoners of war in North Viet Nam would be a transparent attempt to evade the clear prohibition on reprisals which is contained in the 1949 Geneva Convention.

"Any effort to cloak such actions as so-called war crimes through the device of mock trials would be utterly unwarranted and a deliberate evasion of the obligation undertaken by Hanoi when it adhered to the 1949 convention," the spokesman said.

Dr. Blake Urges Council's Action Against Warring

GENEVA (AP) — Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, newly named head of the World Council of Churches, said Saturday an American victory in Viet Nam would cause long-range difficulties.

Dr. Blake, a leader of American Protestantism, called on the council to speak up against the war in Viet Nam.

"The more successful the present American policy is there — the more difficult will be its long-range results," he told the council's policymaking Central Committee.

The committee, in session here since Tuesday, is discussing a series of political problems, including Viet Nam and disarmament. Envoys from Communist countries are among the representatives of 214 Protestant, Orthodox, Old Catholic and Anglican churches forming the organization.

"We cannot remain silent on Viet Nam," Dr. Blake declared. "We should remember that whatever victory there may be possible, it will always be a racial stigma. It will always be the case of a predominantly white power killing an Asian nation."

"We are interested in peace, not just for Christians but for the whole of humanity," he added.

Most members of the committee insist they don't have any intention of trying to undermine Johnson's hand, although one has said an aim of the hearings is to "try to go over the head of the President to the American people."

Johnson says the senators and the critical witnesses really are endorsing the course he is following.

From what he knew of the testimony of former diplomat George F. Kennan and retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Johnson said, "there is not a great deal of difference" between what they "are saying and what the government is doing."

And even though Uncle Sam is sitting in the driver's seat, Gavin said, he has not always been in control of acceleration.

"We have been escalating at the will of our opponents rather than on our own judgment," he said.

Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who is presiding over the probe of the administration's Asian policy, put it this way:

"I am fearful that if the war in Viet Nam is not handled extremely well, the Chinese Communists will come in."

Eagle's Claw Attack Nets Cong Camp, Arms

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Communist base camp abandoned under the Eagle's Claw attack of U.S. air cavalrymen yielded a truckload of arms Saturday. They included 34 recoilless rifles, lethal tubes that serve as light artillery.

The haul "amounts to almost a Chinookful," said Col. Hal G. Moore, 3rd Brigade commander of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, Airmobile. A Chinook is a heavy duty helicopter that can lift six tons.

Three rocket launchers, two antiaircraft guns, two machine guns and 5,000 rounds of ammunition were among supplies the Viet Cong left behind in flight Friday from the helicopter-borne strike 20 miles southwest of Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

46 VC Killed

A U.S. spokesman said the troops killed 46 Viet Cong and captured eight in the Eagle's Claw operation. It marked the first sizable contact by Americans with the enemy since the seizure of the An Lao Valley west of Bong Son last week. The cavalrymen suffered only a handful of wounded.

U.S. patrols hunted elsewhere with little contact.

Several regiments of South Vietnamese troops pressed ahead in the Kien Binh area, 120 miles southwest of Saigon, in a sweep that a spokesman said wiped out three Viet Cong companies Friday.

The Communist forces were trapped in rice fields. The spokesman said 137 of the guerrillas were left dead in the fields and the troops estimated 150 others, killed or wounded, were dragged away by the survivors.

Service wants the armed forces to induce more men who have been rejected and put into the 1Y classification for moral and physical reasons.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey says he believes "there is gold" in the form of militarily acceptable manpower among the some two million men now classified 1Y — qualified for military service only in time of national emergency.

"Vague Estimate"

Hershey said also he believes President Johnson's estimate of 160,000 inductions for the year beginning July 1 is "based on hope." But he didn't say how many he thinks will be inducted.

The military agreed recently to ease up on its mental standards so that generally now a high school graduate is acceptable for induction if he meets other requirements.

Government troops campaigning in the Quang Ngai and Hue sectors north of Saigon said they killed 57 Viet Cong and found 25 others in a mass grave in an area hit last week by U.S. B52 jets from Guam. Casualties among the government forces were termed light.

The B52s struck Friday at a target described as "a major Viet Cong supply base" about 340 miles northeast of Saigon in Quang Nam Province.

Reporting on air operations over North Viet Nam in the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m. Saturday, briefing officers said U.S. Navy and Air Force planes flew 47 missions in overcast weather.

One target was a 5,000-foot-long air strip at Dien Bien Phu, 185

African Safari Business Booming

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The safari business is booming and white hunters in this corner of independent black Africa have never had it so good.

As well equipped to court clients as kill a cat, these resourceful men of the bush earn for Kenya some $3 million a year, mainly from Americans.

It's an arduous, often hazardous job. A wounded lion or leopard can be as deadly as a cornered Viet Cong.

Wild animals are only part of the danger. An elephant gun in the hands of a novice can be fatal to friends as well as fauna. Bill Ryan, a hunter working for one of the biggest Kenya safari outfitters, had a close escape when an angry rhino charged his party.

Trigger Happy
It wasn't the rhino that did the damage. Ryan's trigger-happy client blasted off and shot him in the arm. The rhino got away.

The nature of hunting in East Africa has changed enormously. Little more than 50 years ago you could bag a lion within 20 minutes march of Nairobi. There were no regulations, no licenses and frontiers were vaguely defined.

Long lines of African porters would wind out of Nairobi into the bush.

Somalis, tough desert nomads from the arid horn of Africa, were the first guides. With the increasing flow of visitors local sportsmen were recruited and the term "white hunter" came into use. The profession today is almost exclusively white.

"Many Africans — poachers mostly — are better elephant hunters than I am," says Tony Dyer, lean, boyish-looking president of the East African Professional Hunters' Association.

"But a white hunter has to be more than just a hunter. He has to drink and swap yarns with his clients when the day's hunting is over. He's got to have a lot of ability and adaptability."

"Also it needs quite a bit of capital investment — $5,000 at least — to set up as a professional hunter. Not many Africans with the necessary bushcraft have that sort of money."

Sid Downey, partner in Nairobi's largest safari firm, came out to Kenya in 1925 when the business was first becoming motorized.

"In the old days there was a lot of foot-slogging," he recalls. "If you were going well you might camp 10 miles out of Nairobi on the first night."

"You took anything up to 250 porters and there were big decisions to be made about feeding all those men. A mistake could mean disaster."

Long Hike

The modern expedition will cover up to 3,000 miles in a safari wagon, a personally modified vehicle with gun racks, extra gas tanks, brackets for jerrycans, special doors and a big double roof. It is the hunter's major expense and it takes some terrible punishment on pot-holed, rock-strewn tracks that pass for roads in East Africa.

14B Repeal Fight Was 'Matter Of Principle' To Senator Dirksen

An AP News Analysis
By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Why did Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois single out the union shop bill, among many administration proposals, for the kiss of death?

The answer undoubtedly is a complex one, as could be expected with the Illinois orator whose path through 30-plus years in Congress has been marked by many twists and turns.

But talks with the Republican leader and some of his colleagues indicate that three lines of thought played an important part in his decision to kill this particular bill with the filibuster weapon.

Dirksen has played a major role in winning passage of several of President Johnson's most important measures, including the 1964 and 1965 civil rights bills and last year's immigration bill.

And even when he has opposed other "Great Society" proposals, he nearly always has contented himself with a scathing speech and then has permitted the legislation to come to a vote.

But everything changed with the House-passed bill to repeal Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act and end the authority of states to outlaw the union shop — an authority which his own state of Illinois does not exercise.

Dirksen mounted tightly organized, bipartisan filibusters against this bill last fall and again this session. They proved so effective the Senate never even got to vote on the preliminary motions to consider it.

After failing three times to impose cloture and choke off the filibuster, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana shelved the union shop bill Thursday. He said it is dead for this Congress.

Democratic leaders concede privately that, even with their present overwhelming Senate majority, it is virtually impossible for them to invoke cloture without Dirksen's support.

Dirksen said repeatedly that all-out opposition to 14B repeal is a matter of principle with him because it involves state sovereignty. He said no compromise is possible.

But these three other motives also appear to be present: —His unhappiness over the fate of his proposed constitutional amendment on state legislative reapportionment, about which he feels as deeply as 14B.

This amendment, aimed at the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision, would allow one branch of a legislature to be apportioned on factors other than population.

Dirksen was convinced it had a good chance to clear the Senate last year. He has let it be known he believes behind-the-scenes opposition from the Johnson administration defeated it although the Illinois senator felt he had a pledge of neutrality from the President.

—His desire to score with deep-dyed conservatives among Senate Republicans. Some of these have been muttering about his many assists to Johnson, both on foreign and domestic matters.

—His feeling that 14B is an issue with high emotional appeal to many middle-layer businessmen who are the backbone of the GOP in their communities.

Dirksen's success in blocking the 14B repealer has alarmed many Senate Democratic liberals.

One of these warned Mansfield that, "If we let him get away with this, he can use the same weapon against almost any administration bill where he has Southern Democrats' support."

Dirksen himself has said that he might employ the same tactics against two other major labor bills asked by Johnson to expand minimum wage protection and to boost unemployment compensation payments.

Although in vogue, shoulder length or longer hairstyles are much like the frugor or Watusi—best left to those under 25. A shorter fluff cut shown here adds a special softening effect to the mature woman's features without making her appear girlish. A combination of razor and scissors cut by Michel Contino, it comes into flick curls resembling a chrysanthemum petal. Hair is set on large rollers.

Young Westchester Radio Ham Gets 'Nyet'

WESTCHESTER, Ill. (AP) — A 14-year-old ham radio operator who listens to Radio Moscow got a firm "nyet" to a musical request but an answer, of sorts, to his criticism of Russian reporting.

In a letter written Dec. 15 to Radio Moscow, Eugene Johnson took issue with the Russian station's reporting of the Viet Nam conflict and requested that it play "America" and "God Bless America."

In a broadcast monitored yesterday by a Chicago radio station (WNUS), Radio Moscow turned down his request with: "We do not have those musical selections in our library and have no intention of getting them."

Eugene had gotten a letter Jan. 26 from the Russian station, which read in part: "In spite of the rude tone of the (Eugene's) letter, we would like to inform you that we will arrange a program on the war in Viet Nam on Feb. 7 at 6:10 p.m. EST. You may listen to it after the newscast."

Eugene had written his letter, he said in a telephone interview Wednesday night, after "hearing one of their Viet Nam reports which didn't sound right — they never do."

"All I said was that sometimes their facts tended to be slightly exaggerated," said Eugene, "and asked them about the Viet Cong terrorists our troops found dead chained to their guns. I read about them in the papers."

In his reply, Eugene said, Radio Moscow "mentioned the high desertion rate in the South Vietnamese Army. They said these were the men that should have been chained to their guns."

A spokesman for the Chicago radio station, (Dennis Frazer, executive producer) quoted the Russian station as saying in its broadcast: "We have specific information from French press correspondents saying they were invited into American camps to see Viet Cong soldiers beaten to death."

Eugene's letter was signed by Mrs. Eugenia Stepanova, North American Service, Radio Moscow. A freshman at St. Joseph's

"Pay me my railroad fare and fifty cents for my supper and we are square..."

With high hopes the Phi Alpha Literary Society of Illinois College engaged a speaker for its meeting in February, 1859. They had invited a prominent lawyer and politician from Springfield to deliver a lecture on "Discoveries and Inventions," but were disappointed to find there were few takers for the tickets.

When it became apparent the Society would "go in the red" after paying the speaker's fee, they explained the situation to the gentleman — who had recently been made an honorary member of Phi Alpha — and were relieved when he remarked:

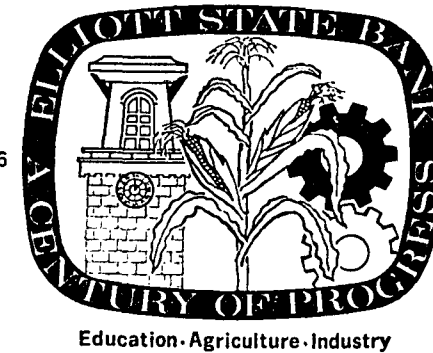

"Well, boys, be hopeful; pay me my railroad fare and fifty cents for my supper at the hotel and we are square."

Two years later the speaker who didn't draw much of a house on the literary circuit in Jacksonville, stood on a podium in Washington, D.C., and was inaugurated President of the United States.

There had never been a question of a big crowd when Abe Lincoln came to Jacksonville to make a political talk. Lincoln's campaign for the presidency and his earlier unsuccessful bid for the Senate seat held by Stephen Douglas, had been tumultuous. Many Jacksonville leaders and residents were ardent supporters of the newly-formed Republican party, and were just as ardently opposed by the Democratic party supporting Douglas.

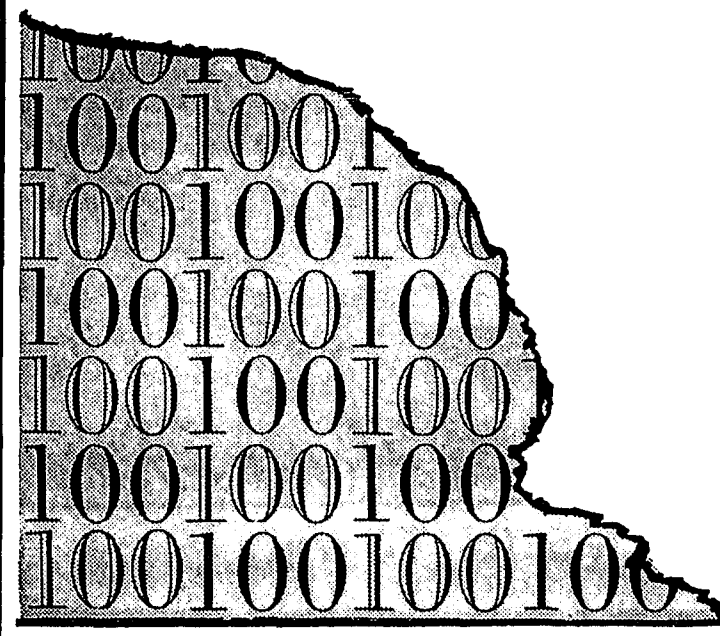

Both factions held rallies in Jacksonville. Douglas and a crowd of 200 campaigners from Springfield, accompanied by the Merritt Cornet Band, journeyed here in September, 1858, and had a rousing turn-out. Later in the month, Lincoln's supporters from Springfield filled eleven cars of a special train to come to Jacksonville and cheer their hero as he addressed an overflow crowd.

When the news of President Lincoln's assassination reached Jacksonville in 1865, he was mourned as a good friend, a neighbor, a frequent visitor, and as the humble man willing to settle for the price of his railroad ticket and supper money when the crowd didn't come.

This page from Jacksonville's past is presented with gratitude by the people of Elliott State Bank, this year observing its 100th year of service. It is based on a history of Jacksonville written by Dr. Ernest Hildner, Illinois College, and commissioned by the bank for its centennial observance.

See the special centennial exhibit of original Lincoln letters and documents on display in the main banking lobby of Elliott State Bank throughout the month of February.

Willie Mays, Davey Jones Too

Gene Autry, Davey Crockett, Daniel Boone Flying In Viet

By EDDIE ADAMS

NHA TRANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — If you want to meet Gene Autry, Davey Crockett, Daniel Boone, Willie Mays and Davey Jones, come to the South China Sea.

They're all here—in one squadron—flying the skies of South Viet Nam.

Explaining their job — flying men and materiel in the 345th Troop Carrier Squadron's C130 Hercules planes — is easier than explaining their names.

Take Staff Sgt. David Crockett, 28, of Jamestown, Tenn. He does not even know if he's kin to the legendary bear-wrestler and Alamo hero.

"I really took a ribbing when the song Davey Crockett was the No. 1 hit," said the sergeant. "Now it doesn't bother me at all. I really don't know if my family tree goes back that far."

Crockett says one of his buddies is actually named John Henry.

Crockett recalls he rather enjoyed meeting Daniel Boone in Okinawa a year ago. Both are flight engineers.

Boone, 23, of Foley, Ala. says "It's a name that people remember but sometimes I wish they hadn't."

When Boone went through boot camp, his instructor on the rifle range naturally figured a guy with a moniker like that was a born sharpshooter.

"I barely qualified," Boone said. "He was furious."

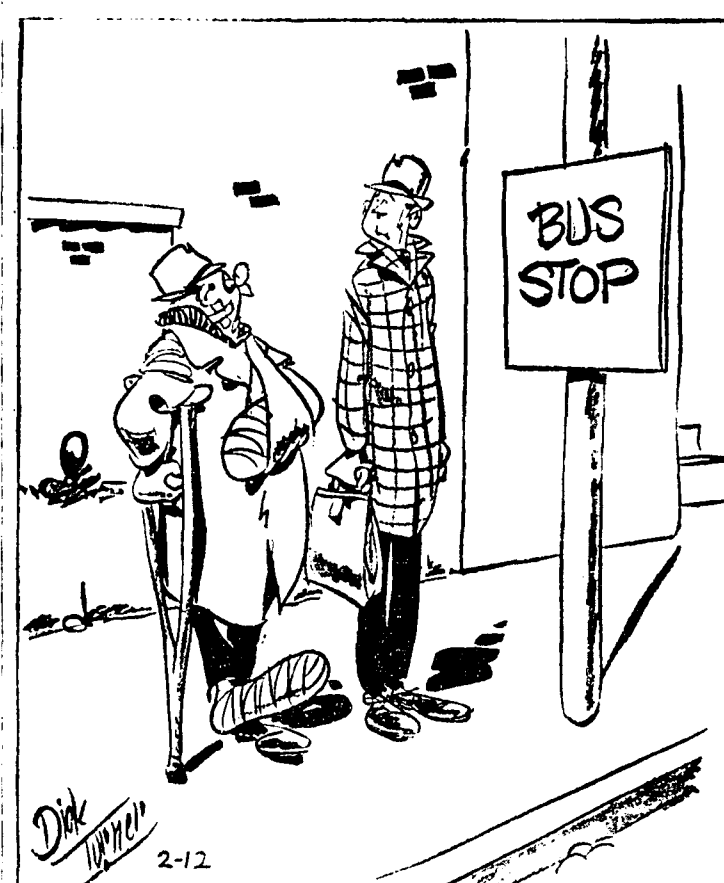

Boone also discovered that even in Brazil his is an exciting name.

"We were picking up some troops in Brazil to take to the Dominican Republic," Boone says, and "this one Brazilian came over and read my name tag. He spelled it out slowly, then said it loud, and louder, and ran away waving his hands and yelling 'Daniel Boone!'"

Gene Autry, 27, from Livingston, N.C., a C130 pilot, knows he is no relation of the

by Dick Turner

"Carelessness, Gelpistol, just plain, stupid carelessness! I handed Junior the car keys while standing directly between him and the car!"

singing cowboy but he is in a tough spot trying to tell people that. They won't believe it. He said he once saw Autry at a fair in Raleigh, N.C., but never got a chance to talk to him.

"My ID card is always coming out of my wallet," Autry says. "What is worse is that my brother-in-law is a second lieutenant in the Air Force in Orlando, Fla. His wife, my sister, gets pretty embarrassed when she introduces us. His name is Andrew Jackson. When Bob Hope had his show over here around Christmas time, I flew him around in my plane. He came over to me one day after reading my name tag and said 'I want your autograph so the people back home will believe me, and by the way, let's not fly sidesaddle while I'm aboard'."

Other squadron members are Willie Mays, 24, of Tuskegee, Ala., with the same name as the baseball star; and pilot Davey Jones, 26, of Newport Beach, Calif. His counterpart is the sailor's sea spirit.

Chief For A Day Leaves Dinner To Answer Alarm

BEARDSTOWN — Boy Scouts here Friday had an exciting time "running the town."
Scouts manned the posts as mayor, chief of police, fire chief, state's attorney, postmaster, water plant superintendent, sewage disposal engineer, hospital administrator and deputy sheriff.
The young men, in full uniform, were assisted at their jobs during the afternoon by the officials themselves.
A dinner was served at the Yates Restaurant for Scouts, their leaders, local businessmen and city officials.
Jim Crum was in charge of the arrangements.
During the dinner the local fire alarm sounded, and Chief Jack Webster, closely followed by Scout Neil Snelling, "was off to the wars." Chief of Police Carl Wubker and his scout assistant were not far behind.

Man Is Caught Up In A Fragile World

EDITOR'S NOTE — In the robot world of the atoms and space, man is sometimes outwitted by his own machines, and human error can darken a whole coast, or close a bank. Has man, then, lost control of his environment? No, says an expert, not as long as man has that "small globe of gray matter," the human brain.

By JOHN BARBOUR
NEW YORK (AP) — In this fragile world, there are few small dilemmas, few small mistakes any more.

Someone jams on the brakes on a foggy Los Angeles freeway, and 100 cars pile up behind, like a nightmare in a hall of mirrors.

The computer in a bank breaks down, and $3 billion in accounts are locked in its magnetic memory. For 24 hours, even it can't say how much money you have left.

A circuit breaker fails, and most of the northeastern United States is plunged into powerless darkness, city by city, an assembly line of calamity. Dishwashers, refrigerators, the whole electric universe dies out. The most modern of worlds becomes primitive again.

A few lonely voices warn that things have become so complex an entire city can be reduced to chaos by the failure of a handful of individuals, or a single, basic source of power.

"Ever since a man knocked two stones together to make a tool, he's been altering his environment," explained anthropologist Loren Eiseley. "But never before has he had such giant powers to do good or evil — nor has he ever been less able to predict the good or evil of his efforts."

Many social scientists feel humans are rushing pell-mell into the brave new world without considering the cost to the individual — and whether he really wants it.

Even the greatest proponents of automation point out we're in a period of adjustment — a time when our society is showing some of the cracks, some of the brittleness when man and machine get out of balance.

"We are so fascinated by our own magic that we forget the repercussions of what we do," said Dr. Eiseley, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania. He has traced the subtle changes in life and man from their beginnings. But, he said, today "we are dealing with something totally unique."

"I don't think there has ever been a period of such rapid change. Long before my actual death, I'm beginning to feel like I was born in another century."

The Rev. Myron Bloy, Protestant Episcopal chaplain at the highly technological Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has said that much of the student unrest on college campuses stems from increased mechanization. In rebellion students seek more personal involvement in areas where they can still exert individual influences.

When the power went out Nov. 9 and froze 80,000 square miles of the populous Northeast, New Yorkers got a common, if eerie view, of their city. In those first moments of darkness, people looked around at the dead buildings, like a fossil world, and wondered at the fact that a 70-story tall building could become useless because its elevators stopped running, and its lights went out.

Few places are immune from this. Shortly after the Northeast blackout, power failures hit parts of Texas. Of some 3,000 separate power companies in the United States, more than three-quarters of them are interconnected, operate in parallel, share the load.

The computer really works quite well. It's just that when it fails, its errors are enormous. A rainstorm shut down a computer complex in New Jersey and blacked out some 800 stock brokers on the going prices of nearly 3,000 issues. In Great Britain a computer over-estimated how much beer a brewery should produce for the holidays, and two million pints of beer had to be thrown out unsold.

Even scientists have mixed emotions on the role of computers in research. One poll of nearly 200 scientists showed that most felt the computer had a place in scientific study. But some felt that it tempted researchers to accept numerical answers to problems instead of looking beyond the numbers of underlying scientific laws.

It showed that older scientists tended to use computers less than young ones, and scientists working with the vagaries of medicine and biology used them less than scientists working in hard sciences such as physics.

The reliance on machines affects the whole constellation of political and economic and social order, says anthropologist Eiseley.

Under the impact of technology, the very institutions of society are altering. "It is as though the bones of your body were constantly changing while you try to keep yourself together," he said.

The pressures of population of modern day society are already beginning to tell — not alone in India or China where food is the problem, but in the United States where just getting to work is a problem.

Some 35,000 transit workers in New York City struck, tying up the city's subways and buses. The result was chaos. Every morning a surge of cars, bicycles, anything with wheels, headed into Manhattan. Every night they turned for home again. The city's working population has become so enormous that it is helpless without its transit system. Even a militant union man like Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, called for some new approach that would bring successful bargaining without the need to resort to such obsolete strikes.

Dr. Simon Ramo, West Coast scientific planner, thinks that by the year 2,000, the partnership of man and electronic machine will be taken for granted. But in the final decades of this century man is faced "with a technological straitjacket of our own making." Man needs, Ramo says, to find ways of making technology work for him and not to have him working for technology.

Dr. Glenn Seaborg, head of the Atomic Energy Commission, acknowledges "there are many people who fear the current explosion of science and technology, who see in it a dehumanizing effort, who believe that it is running away with us, and that we are becoming its slaves, instead of remaining its masters."

But he personally disagrees: "I believe we can be masters of our fate. We need not be trapped by the onrush of our technology — simply because we recognize it."

The trick is recognizing the problems and planning their solution.

An anthropologist once said: "Beware of the small invention — the baby bottle that takes the child away from his mother's breast, or the baby carriage that denies him the warmth of being held."

"Who would have thought," asks Eiseley, "that the first car, or the first plane would bring 50 to 100,000 years of that earlier time was an capable of mastering everything well have mastered. Man simply had not had time to discover. But he had a brain which could."

Only that brain which has carried him through ages of stone and iron can firm up his fragile relationship with machines and the power they have brought him in the ages of the atom and space.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Day-to-day price changes for butcher hogs were rather limited last week, ranging from a peak of $29.50 a hundredweight on two days and to $30.25 on one, equal to the previous week's peak.

The supply of 21,500 head was the smallest for any week since

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ended an eventful week in which some averages touched new highs and the market as a whole, based on statistics, carved out a moderate gain. Trading was heavy.

The list was able to rise even though investors displayed their disappointment with two of the biggest leaders, General Motors and Chrysler. At the same time, the most widely held stock of all, American Telephone, was affected by the death of its biggest shareholder, Billy Rose.

GM ended the week with a loss of 2 1/4 at 104 1/2. On Monday directors raised the dividend to 85 cents a share from 75 cents, but they failed to do what some traders were betting — split the stock.

Chrysler fell 3 points on Thursday even though it reported record earnings. Because more stock was outstanding than a year ago it had to be spread thinner and the result was a decline in per-share earnings. Because of its earlier strength last week, Chrysler's net loss was only 1/4 on the week.

AT&T ended the week with a loss of 3/4, although it fell 1 1/4 on Thursday in reaction to the news of Billy Rose's death. He owned 160,000 shares of "Telephone."

The heaviest selling of the year came Tuesday when the ticker tape ran as much as 19 minutes late and volume swelled to 10.55 million shares. Aerospace issues, electronics, other defense-related stocks and a wide range of miscellaneous issues, electronics, other defense-related stocks and a wide range of miscellaneous issues were dumped on a report that the North Viet Nam president had asked the Indian government to initiate peace moves in Viet Nam.

In a strong rebound from the "peace scare," the market made a stab at "Dow 1,000" on Wednesday when the Dow industrials scored a record closing peak of 99.5.15 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index made a record of 94.06.

Both average settled backward on Thursday and Friday when considerable irregularity prevailed.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week ended with a net gain of 2.68 at 999.03.

IC Debate Team Wins 2nd Place In WIU Tourney

An Illinois College debate team, composed of freshmen Rick Pokora of Springfield and Roger Farrington of Pittsfield, won second place honors in Western Illinois University's debate tournament held Friday and Saturday.

Forty-two schools from five states were represented in the two-day competition.

Down 8 Opponents The Hilltop squad was undefeated until the final round, downing teams from the University of Iowa, Iowa Wesleyan, Augustana, Northwest Missouri, Midland Lutheran, Iowa State and the host entry before losing a split decision to Amundson College of Chicago. The local entry defeated a formidable Michigan State entry in the quarter finals.

Professor Raymond Ford, coach of the I.C. team, reported that his relatively inexperienced freshmen acquitted themselves well against powerful competition said he was "quite pleased," both with the results of the tournament and with the team's prospects for the future.

In State Competition Martha Thompson and John Porter, represented Illinois College at the state oratorical tourney held at Knox College in Galesburg recently with Miss Thompson bringing home fourth place laurels.

May Draft

Speaking on a WTOP television-radio program taped for broadcast Sunday noon, Hershey said:

"I'm certainly going to exert every pressure I can to not only look at the intellectually rejected but the morally and physically rejected."

Asked if the military is rejecting on moral grounds youths who deliberately establish court records by parking violations or other minor offenses, Hershey said he could not cite a specific case "but I do hear far more than I like about people running up criminal records to escape."

"That's one reason I have felt that the armed forces ought to take some of these minor criminals in not to even encourage anybody to think of it," Hershey said.

Will Accept More He said also he feels the armed forces have been rejecting a great many people they are going to have to accept because the public is not going to stand having a lot of people escape military service by minor infractions of the law.

Asked what he thinks will be the attitude of the military toward acceptance of students involved in a sit-in last year at the local draft board in Ann Arbor, Mich., and subsequently convicted of trespass, Hershey said:

"If he violated our law by interrupting the procedures, then the armed forces can't turn him down."

"But if he comes up with a military record in the State of Michigan, they could very well raise the question of violating a law that is not ours and he therefore was not acceptable."

Hershey said this amounts to "telling our kids to go out and make criminals of themselves and they will not have to serve" and he added:

"Some fine people are doing it."

He said he is "trying to believe that the University of Michigan students at Ann Arbor were not trying to do that."

ILLUMINATION In railroad the first attempt at night illumination was a crude step taken by an engineer who attached a small lantern to the front of the locomotive. He covered the car's floor with a heavy layer of sand on which he kept a bonfire of pine knots.

Rabbi

(Continued From Page One) the psychiatric ward of Detroit General Hospital. The father said he had not seen his son for several days until he appeared at the synagogue.

Jonathan Rose, 23, a former schoolmate with Wisnietzky at the University of Michigan, described Wisnietzky as "a very nice guy, brilliant and very academic."

Wisnietzky's teen-age sister, Terry Ann, delivered the "prayer to the country" early in Saturday's service.

Account Given Louis Berry, president of the congregation, gave this account of the shooting.

"It was like a dream. I can't believe it. Rabbi Adler had just finished a beautiful sermon in which he referred to Abraham Lincoln."

"Then, this young man walked on the bimah (dais) and fired a shot into the ceiling. He ordered everyone off except Rabbi Adler."

"Rabbi Adler turned to us and said 'You'd better do what he says. This boy is sick.' We had walked about 40 feet when the boy walked up to Rabbi Adler, fired at him once or twice, then shot himself as the rabbi fell to the floor."

Rabbi Adler's wife, Goldie, was in the congregation and rushed to his side. Within a few minutes, she went to Wisnietzky's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wisnietzky, to console them.

Berry said she told them, "The boy could not help it." Rabbi Adler has been with congregation Shaarey Zedek since 1938 and directed the building of its $4.5-million synagogue which was dedicated in 1962.

The building, Rabbi Adler said, was the largest of the Jewish Conservative movement in the United States.

Leading Spokesman Rabbi Adler had been active in recent years in ecumenical talks among Catholics, Protestants and Jews and was conceded to be one of the leading spokesmen for the Jewish community in Detroit.

Wisnietzky's rambling discourse was recorded by a tape recorder which had been set up for the bar mitzvah, or confirmation, of Steven Frank, 13.

The tape replay picked up those words from Wisnietzky: "This congregation is a travesty and an abomination. It has made a mockery of its phonyness and hypocrisy, the beauty and spirit of Judaism."

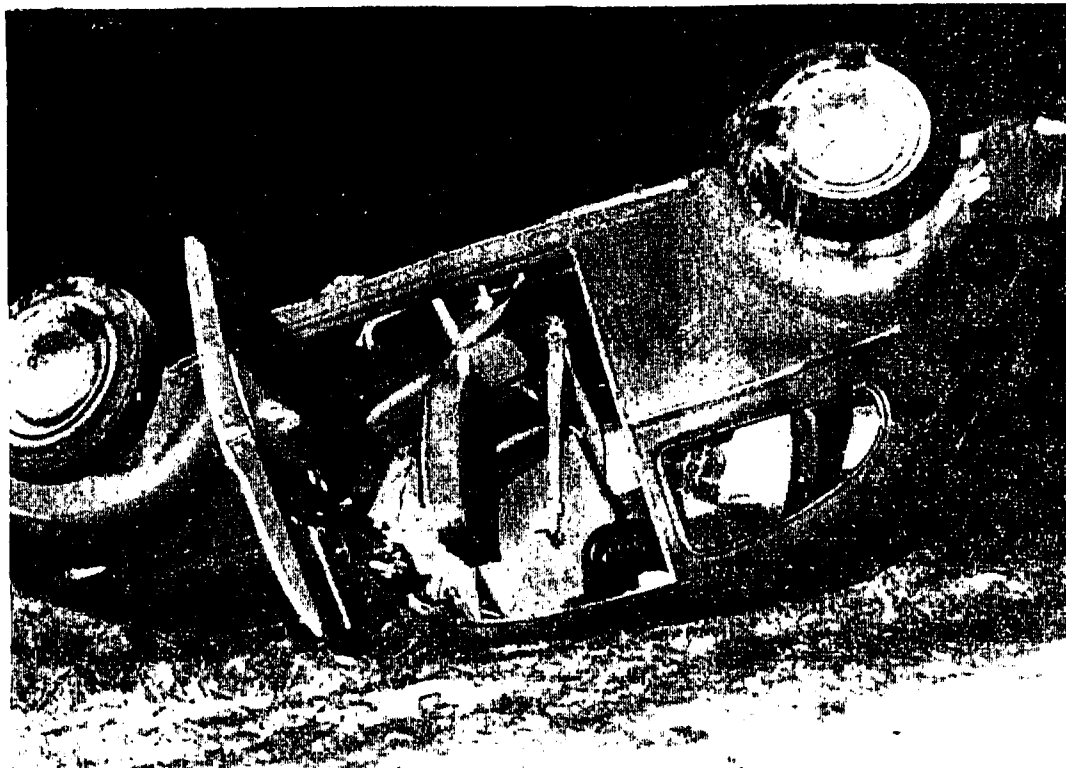

"It is composed of people who on the whole may be ashamed to say 'I am a Jew.' For the most part it is composed of men, women and children who can't fall in love, nothing except their own vain, egotistical selves (here the tape blurred momentarily)."

"With this, I must protest the human horrifying and hence unacceptable situation. Rabbi Adler said 'I am a Jew.'"

As he said 'Rabbi,' a lot of noise broke out in the background.

Gerald Wright was rushed to Passavant hospital by ambulance where he was treated for injuries not believed to be serious. Wright was released after treatment and X-rays. Investigating state troopers said Wright was eastbound at the time of the accident; lost control of the small foreign car and overturned several times before coming to rest at the side of the highway. Seat belts in the auto (shown hanging from the floor of the auto) may have prevented more serious injuries according to troopers. The auto was towed to a local garage.

LBJ In '68? John Fraley Dies Saturday

May Break Tradition If this is an American tradition, then political strategists think Johnson is just the man who would like to break it. They note also that if Johnson should win a second term and serve it out, he would have been president longer than any man except his idol, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

These strategists do not believe that Johnson would quit voluntarily in the middle of unfinished business in Viet Nam nor do they believe he would be likely to be defeated if he runs again during a war.

They say also he would hardly be enthusiastic about having Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., become a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination to succeed him.

Johnson is giving Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, whom he chose as his 1964 running mate after rejecting Kennedy, a chance to sun himself in the political spotlight by sending him to Saigon and other areas in Asia.

But if Johnson has any idea of backing Humphrey to succeed him, politicians generally think he may need more time to build up the vice president's voter popularity than the less than two years remaining before the 1968 pre-convention campaigning starts.

For these and other reasons, most of the pros are convinced that when 1968 rolls around the familiar name of Johnson will be on the ticket again.

Hearings

"What we are seeking to do now is go over the head of the President to the American people, and reach him by way of the people."

So far the committee has cross-examined Bell, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presented the views of Kennan and Gavin.

This week it's the administration's turn again when retired Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and ambassador to Saigon, appears and Rusk returns for another round of questions.

Broadly the questions have been: To escalate or not to escalate? To bomb or not to bomb? And how did we get in — and how do we get out — of the mess?

The questions have ranged from the morality to the practicality of bombing, from nuclear war to losing face.

Fulbright argues the hearings are meant to be educational, that he doesn't consider himself a "great critic," that he doesn't think he is embarrassing the administration and that "it is an unhappy situation to appear to be obstructing your own government. — I hope I am not."

On the other hand, he said: "I have never seen an issue on which there has been such uncertainty. There were no such differences in the Korean War or World War II. One reason is that this situation isn't very clear cut."

Only the woman in the kitchen and the man on the street will really know whether the hearings shed light or cast shadows with their often contrasting and sometimes contradictory testimony.

Is the President getting any reaction from the people?

Johnson, replying to a question about how his mail is running on the Viet Nam issue, noted "That there are a good many people in the country that are troubled about Viet Nam and wish we could find some way to negotiate, but I think the country overwhelmingly supports the position that we have taken. I believe the members of the House and the Senate do likewise."

The committee reports that its mail is running about 30-1 against escalation of the war and for the public hearings.

Powerful Lincoln Raps Jacks 63-47

LINCOLN — Bob Patterson, a classy 6-4 center, tossed in 38 points here Saturday night to pace a strong Lincoln Railsplitter outfit to an impressive 63-47 non-conference romp over a cold-shooting Jacksonville club.

Patterson's offensive outburst, the most points scored by one player against the Crimsons all season, and the Jacks' coldest-shooting evening of the year were the differences in the game as JHS dropped its fourth straight contest.

The stringy senior center had quarters of five, ten, six and ended up with a 17-point spurge in the final eight minutes, as the Crimsons, outsize by over two inches per man, were unable to stop the Railsplitters after halftime.

Jacksonville ended the game with an icy 29% shooting rate from the field, managing but 18 of 62 shots, after suffering through an even colder first half in which they could only second half, Patterson and Guy, Chandler 20% of their shots but still a 6-2 senior forward, broke managed to stay in contention, loose for ten of the next 12 White.

Lincoln, up by as much as 11 points for a 36-22 Lincoln margin in the first half, managed only an eight-point halftime difference, as the Railsplitters hit the Crimsons at a less-than-impressive 30% within 30 seconds the slice the clip. Patterson and Greg Guy difference back to ten, 36-26. Hess broke loose in the third quarter but the Railsplitters broke and the Crimsons were never again behind Patterson and Dick Stefanec for the final eight.

With Patterson getting the first 15 points for Lincoln in the fourth frame, the Railsplitters jumped the count to 26 points, 63-37, before Jacksonville threw in the final ten points of the game to soften the difference.

The victory boosts the highly-rated Lincoln outfit to a 15-5 mark on the year, while JHS fell to 11-10.

JHS hit only three of 13 shots in the opening quarter, going over four minutes without a field goal, and Lincoln registered a 12-7 lead at the close.

Patterson hit the first six points in the second frame and Lincoln upped the count to 18-9 before Duane Hess got the Coleman got his first bucket with one minute left in the half and quickly added a second after a steal as Lincoln held a 26-18 halftime margin.

Lincoln Breaks Loose After Coleman pulled Jacksonville through an even colder first half in which they could only second half, Patterson and Guy, Chandler 20% of their shots but still a 6-2 senior forward, broke managed to stay in contention, loose for ten of the next 12 White.

Lincoln, up by as much as 11 points for a 36-22 Lincoln margin in the first half, managed only an eight-point halftime difference, as the Railsplitters hit the Crimsons at a less-than-impressive 30% within 30 seconds the slice the clip. points of the quarter and a 44-26 bulge entering the final eight minutes.

Patterson was the whole story in the closing quarter, getting 15 straight for Lincoln while JHS was limited to buckets by Hess, Ginder and two by Abe Brown.

Indiana Tips ISD Tigers By 63-51 Win

INDIANAPOLIS — After being outscored 16-8 in the first quarter by Indiana School for the Deaf, ISD rallied in the last three frames before losing 63-51.

The ISD Tigers hit 35% from the field to 41% for the Indiana club. The Tigers were plagued by cold shooting from the free throw line, dropping only 15-32 for 47% and missing 17 possible points.

John Miracle, the high man for Indiana, hit 14 points in the first half, but ISD guard Jesse Joyner covered him with a tight man to man in the second half, holding him to only three points.

Terry Storey paced the local club with 18 counters. Miracle and Bob Swanagan, playing the base line for the Indiana team, fought well under the boards as Indiana outrebounded ISD 38-24.

Indiana only outscored ISD by a total of four points in the last three quarters, but their eight point margin at the end of the first quarter kept them safely out of reach of the local team.

Both clubs now hold identical 3-14 records for the season.

MacMatmen Romp Past WIU 19-11

Five MacMurray Highlanders moved into the winners circle Saturday night, while another gained a draw to lift the Clan wrestling unit to a 19-11 triumph over Western Illinois University.

Gary Henning, MacMurray's 160-pound entrant, garnered the only fall of the night, pinning Western's Mike Wallaert in 7:30.

The victory leaves the Clansmen with a 6-4 record in dual meet competition, while the visiting Leathernecks stand at a 2-5 status.

After 123-pound Tom Kolter drew, Rich Johnson put the Highlanders on top by 5-2 with a 4-1 win in the 130-pound class.

Freshman Ron Otto kept things going for the Clan with a slim 5-4 edge at 137, before Paul Nelson gave the locals a 11-2 advantage by mauling Dave Richardson by a 7-1 count.

Western's Jack Hughes then posted the visitors first conquest of the night, downing Tom Knight by 3-1. Henning's pin followed, however, leaving the Clan up by 16-5.

Visiting 167-pounder Norm Lovelace capped the next event in impressive style, out-pointing MacMurray captain Pete Brann by a 5-1 count.

Sophomore Syd LaMore captured the Highlander's final win of the match 3-1, before Western's "Doc" Noll took heavyweight honors over Wayne Schurter 7-4.

HAVANA — Bergan beat Havana 55-48, here Saturday night, in a game that was tied ten times in the second half, the last time at 47-47.

Bergan jumped out to a 16-9 first quarter lead as Havana was unable to handle their effective full court press. Bergan went on in the second period to extend their lead to 15 points before Havana caught fire out-scoring Bergan 20-12 in the second frame and bringing the half time total to 30-29, Havana.

The lead saw-sawed back and forth in the second half with the score being tied 10 times. With the score knotted up 47-47 in the fourth quarter, Bergan hit for eight more counters, sinking while Havana ducks were able to score only one more point.

MacMurray Tips Elmhurst, 87-79

ELMHURST — Mac had to scramble in the second half to beat Elmhurst 87-79, after the Highlanders lost a 10-point halftime lead in a game here Saturday night.

Mac had four players in double figures with Tom Cochran continuing his recent hot streak and pacing the Highlanders with 24 points. Captain Chuck Hundley contributed 23 to the MacMurray cause. Bill Lundquist led the Elmhurst Bluejays with 21 as they also put four men in double numbers.

MacMurray, shooting at a 47% clip for the first half, gained a ten point advantage at halftime, 50-40.

The Bluejays put the pressure on Mac in the opening minutes of the second half, and with 11:17 to go in the ball game, tied the score at 56 all, as Lundquist hit 16 of his 21 in the second half.

With 9:56 showing on the clock, Elmhurst took the lead with the score 59-56, but Mac fought back ahead at 62-61 and took it from there going away as Cochran dropped 14 points in the second half.

MacMurray shot 45% from the field for the night and 55% from the line, and the Bluejays shot 45% from the outside and connected on 64% of their charity tosses.

The Highlanders are now 10-11 for the season with six games remaining, including a Tuesday night home game with Iowa Wesleyan.

Hill Rise Takes San Antonio Win Via Late Surge

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Hill Rise came from far off a blistering pace and won the $56,500 San Antonio Handicap Saturday, stamping himself as a strong threat in the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 26.

A crowd estimated at 53,000 watched the 5-year-old Hill Rise take advantage of a duel on the front end by Native Diver and Bold Bidder, and hit the wire 1 1/2 lengths in front of another stretch runner, Terry's Secret.

Bold Bidder was third, 2 1/2 lengths back, and pacesetter Native Diver finished well out of the money.

Hill Rise, ridden by Manuel Ycaza for the El Peco Ranch of George A. Pope Jr., earned $34,000 and boosted his lifetime earnings to $624,599.

Bold Bidder, winner of the Charles S. Strub Stakes for 4-year-olds two weeks ago, was ridden by Bill Shoemaker and went to the post the favorite.

The Shoe, with no luck at all on favorites this hazy afternoon, drew another round of boos from the big crowd.

"The time for the 1 1/2 miles was 1:47, three-fifths of a second off the track and world record set here by Bug Brush in this same stakes in 1959.

Hill Rise, the third betting choice, paid $11.40, $5.40 and $3.40. Terry's Secret returned $5 and $3 and Bold Bidder $3.

Cappelletti And Haynes Featured In AFL Figures

NEW YORK (AP) — Abner Haynes lost one job and excelled in another; Gino Cappelletti made his points when they counted; and nine place-kickers established an unprecedented accuracy mark during the 1965 American Football League season.

Denver's Haynes, who failed to make the starting backfield for the first time in his pro career, emerged Saturday as the AFL's kickoff return champion with the release of official final league figures.

It is the first individual title for the 27-year-old speedster since he captured both the rushing and punt return crowns in 1960, his rookie year.

The Broncos halfback ran back 34 kickoffs for 901 yards—an average of 26.5 yards per return. Buffalo's Charlie Warren finished second with a 25.8 average while turning in the longest runback of the season—a 102-yard touchdown jaunt.

Cappelletti nailed the scoring championship for the third straight year with 28 points in his final game. That gave the Boston Patriots' veteran a total of 132 and a 17-point margin over runner-up Pete Gogolak of Buffalo.

AFL kickers went through the entire season without missing an extra point, a feat never before accomplished in the recorded history of pro football. The eight AFL clubs were 267 for 267 on conversions, with San Diego's Herb Travenzo 40 for 40 leading the way.

Tommy Brooker toed 37 of 37 for Kansas City, extending his perfect record through four seasons. He has booted 136 in a row without a miss. Jack Spikes of the Chiefs was the odd man, spelling Brooker on six attempts and making good on all of them.

Three-time punting leader Jim Fraser, traded from Denver to Kansas City for Haynes, lost the title to teammate Jerrell Wilson, who averaged 46.1 yards on 68 punts.

W. K. Hicks, a second-year man with the Houston Oilers led the league in pass interceptions with nine.

Dickinson Holds 4 Stroke Lead In Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gardner Dickinson Jr., a 130-pounder who hits like a heavyweight, shot a steady two-under par 69 Saturday to take a second-round lead in the $60,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

The 38-year-old veteran from Lost Tree Village, Fla., had a 36-hole total of 135, seven under par on the 6,765-yard Phoenix County Club course, a 36-35-71 layout.

Dickinson, who ranked 15th in official earnings with $47,485 last year, is hoping to rebound after a slow start. His 1966 earnings total just $540.

He scrambled to a par 35 Saturday on the back nine, which he played first. He bogied the 36th hole but bounced back with a birdie on 16, a 370-yard par 4.

He wasted little time after making the turn, getting birdies on two of the next three holes, and then paring out.

Marston Rudolph shot a second round 71 for a two-day total of 139 and undisputed possession of second place. Bob Rosburg, with a 71, was alone in third at 140.

Doug Sanders, hoping for his second straight tourney victory, stayed within striking distance with an even-par 71, making him one of five golfers at 141.

Grouped with Sanders were Jack Little, George Archer, Gene Rutter and Dick Crawford. Archer's 68 Saturday tied him with Dave Stockton for the day's best round. Stockton was another stroke back at 142.

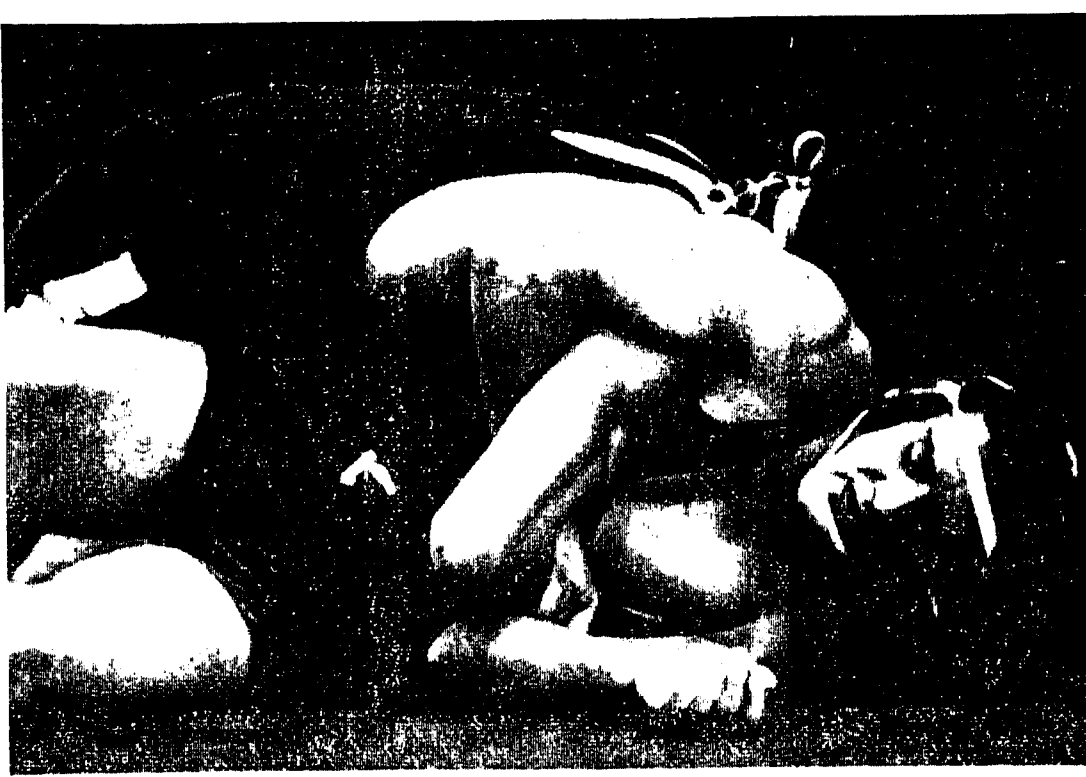

Arnold Palmer, three-time winner here, spent much of the day in trouble and carded a 74, giving him 145 for 36 holes.

Baseball Signings

CHICAGO (AP) — Two pitchers and an outfielder-pitcher selected in the recent free agent draft of the major leagues have been signed by the Chicago White Sox, it was announced Saturday.

They are Ron Ellis of Portsmouth, Va., outfielder-pitcher who collected 32 hits in 34 at bats for 941 in high school and was 9-1 on the mound; right-handed pitcher Steve Kokor of Cucamonga, Calif., and right-hander Jim Barton, who had 105 strikeouts in 79 innings and an earned run average of 1.03 in three seasons at Akron University.

Ellis was assigned to Appleton, Wis., Kokor to Indianapolis, and Barton to Deerfield Beach, Fla.

ARM-LOCKING: Roger Zulauf, here on the bottom, tangles with Quincy's Bob Corbit in an arm-tangling tussle. Zulauf, a 180-pounder, copped a third in the District wrestling tourney Saturday.

Between You'n' me

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Few athletes, professional or amateur, command respect like Billy Bradley.

So when he was named winner of the Sullivan Award as the nation's outstanding athlete for 1965, Billy Cunningham, Dick Van Arsdale and Fred Hetzel were probably as happy as the recipient.

They, like Bradley, were All-America selections last season. But unlike the former Princeton star, they are playing professionally now. Cunningham with Philadelphia, Van Arsdale with New York and Hetzel with San Francisco.

The Milwaukee Atlanta switch seems to be the top conversational item, even among the track and field people who usually are completely immersed in split times or statistics.

At a luncheon in New York, Chic Werner, director of the United States Track and Field Federation, was explaining that a championship meet scheduled for Milwaukee had to be canceled when the arena was not available.

"That's all right," someone shouted from the audience, "anything out of Milwaukee will be welcome in Atlanta!"

John Pennel, the pole vaulter, is an easy mark for the autograph hunters, even though Pennel, as a kid, loathed chasing an athlete.

Which helps to explain his surprise when Sandy Koufax, at a sports dinner, approached Pennel and requested his autograph.

"I didn't quite know what to do," Pennel said, "so I signed and asked him for his. It's one of the few times in my life I did that!"

Casey Stengel, in town for a brief reunion with the Mets front office personnel, was asked to describe his years with the club.

Never dodging a chance to speak, Casey replied: "Those last two years at Shea we had a nice green rug in the clubhouse and the players never once messed it up. . . Come to think of it, they never messed the field up either."

Jack Kramer, the pro tennis promoter and one of the game's former greats, doesn't play much any more.

"How can I?" he asked. "I pull a muscle just putting my socks on."

Between you'n' me, it must have surprised Bill Austin when he heard about the high recommendation Vince Lombardi delivered to Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Austin was an assistant under Lombardi at Green Bay and a few years ago when another NFL team was searching for a head coach, it wanted Austin.

At the time, Lombardi said Austin wasn't ready. The team also was in the Western Division.

Buckeyes Roar From Behind For 68-54 Loop Edge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State roared from behind with a 48-point second half victory Saturday that brought the Buckeyes a 68-54 Big Ten triumph over Purdue.

Bill Hosket, Bob Dove and Al Peters led the comeback drive with 18, 17 and 16 points, respectively. But scoring honors went to the Boilermakers' Dave Schellhase.

Schellhase, the nation's top scorer with a 31.2 average, netted 27 on 11 baskets in 19 tries and five of nine from the free throw line.

The Buckeyes could not penetrate Purdue's zone defense and fell behind by as many as nine points in the first half. Purdue led 27-20 at the half.

Ohio State stormed out in the second half, outscoring Purdue 10-2 in the first 3 1/2 minutes to take a 30-29 lead.

Illini Comeback Falls Short, Indiana Wins 81-77

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Indiana, leading by as much as 15 points at times, checked a fading minute as Max Walker made two free throws and Gary Grieger added two more in the final seven seconds. The Hoosiers' last 11 points were on free throws.

The loss was Illinois' second in a row and left it with a 5-3 record. Indiana is 2-5.

The Hoosiers jumped ahead 14-3 at the start and held a 15-point edge three minutes before halftime. Then the Illini put on their charge behind the scoring of Don Freeman, who hit 17 of his total 25 points in the first half.

Illinois pulled up to 38-36 at intermission, and at the start of the second half led twice before Bill Russell led the Hoosiers back on top.

With six minutes to play, Illinois cut the deficit to 64-63, but Russell and Max Walker fired Indiana ahead 71-65.

Illinois never caught up, but Bob Brown and Freeman made it close and it was 77-75 for the Hoosiers at 1:07 after Deen Flessner hit for Illinois. Walker topped scoring with 27 points and Gary Grieger added 17. Rich Jones was second to Freeman for the Illini with 23.

Golfers Can Sure Tell Some Whoppers

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA) — The hole-in-one, or rather the near hole-in-one, probably has spawned as much recklessness with the truth as the wildest and biggest fish imaginable.

Any golfer knows this, which explains why Bob Mitera is likened to a criminal when he tells his hole-in-one story.

"I got so tired of talking about my hole-in-one," said Mitera, a 21-year-old senior at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. "Every time I'm asked about it, somebody always says, 'Come on, Bob, you're trying to kid'."

Mitera is not fibbing. His story has been checked and rechecked. He did indeed hit a 444-yard hole-in-one, the longest ace ever recorded as well as one of the longest tee shots ever measured.

In the days after he hit it, last Oct. 7, Mitera found golf authorities from everywhere lurking around, asking questions of his friends, checking witnesses on the course and tape-measuring the hole on which Mitera hit his record shot.

"For a while I was beginning to think I had done something wrong," he said. "I even thought about lying and saying the whole thing was a hoax. It would have been much easier that way."

When Mitera was in New York to be feted for his feat, the emcee's introduction went like this:

"Bob Mitera's unbelievable accomplishment . . . er, I mean, it was beyond belief . . . I mean . . ."

"That's O.K.," Mitera interjected. "I'm used to it."

Mitera says that people seem more willing to believe that his double eagle was carried into the cup by a friendly snake. Or they ask, "Was it a concrete fairway? Was it a short-cut shot on a dogleg hole?"

"The trick," he explained, "was a strong wind, gusts up to 50-miles-an-hour. I shouldn't even have been playing that day."

"I teed the ball high, with the wind at my back, and took a healthy cut. The ball was pretty well hit. It just got up into that slipstream and took off."

The hole is 444 yards straightaway. About 300 yards off the tee the fairway drops sharply down to the green. Mitera's drive cleared the knoll, got a good roll onto the green and trickled into the cup.

A playing partner, Dennis Houlihan, had hit first. Houlihan's tee shot, as it turned out, went over the green.

Mitera normally is not a big hitter. He stands 5-6 and weighs 160. Friends teased him, as a boy, that he should stay off golf courses because if a good wind came along, he'd have to take a train back.

Mitera shot 74 the day he broke the hole-in-one record held by Lou Kretlow, former major league pitcher, Kretlow's 427-yard 18th hole at Oklahoma City, Okla., Lake Hefner Golf Club on March 23, 1961.

The little Nebraskan, who wants to be a lawyer and not a golf professional, said he was "absolutely incredulous" when, after a long search he found

Wildcats Race Past Hawkeyes 81-73 In Big Ten

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Northwestern's Wildcats helped keep Iowa a cripple on the road by downing the Hawkeyes 81-73 Saturday night in a Big Ten basketball game.

It was the fourth loss against three victories for Iowa which has yet to win a Big Ten game on the road and Northwestern recorded its third triumph against five defeats.

Northwestern broke up a close-scoring game in the first half by grabbing a 34-31 lead and the Wildcats took command in the second half.

Northwestern led by as much as 13 points in the second half and the Hawkeyes never really threatened although Ben McGilmer, scoring 19 of his 21 points in the second half, kept the Hawkeyes in the running.

Jim Burns topped Northwestern with 22 points and Ron Kozicki chipped in with 18. Sophomore Mike Weaver, who helped defeat Illinois earlier in the week, had 12 points.

Mr. Montee, president of the Former Trustees of PMAH, presented each retiring member with a certificate of appreciation.

Pathologist Speaks
Dr. Robert Kooker, staff pathologist at PMAH, was the speaker of the evening. His subject was "The Hospital's Laboratory, Today and Tomorrow." He discussed the growing use of the laboratory for the entire community in addition to its service to hospital patients, noting that many procedures now are diagnostic. Modern laboratory methods also make it possible to monitor the progress of disease and the results of treatment; such procedures require extreme precision and the increased use of instrumentation.

The changing nature of laboratory medicine is due in part to the fact that 80 per cent of the medicines in use today did not exist 10 years ago, Dr. Kooker said, and partly to improvements in technique which allow the physician to diagnose and treat illnesses which could not be identified and treated a few years ago.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Rusby Slinkard of the Virginia Methodist Church. The Rev. M. D. Goldsborough of the Bluffs Methodist Church gave the closing prayer.

The Saxer vehicle was turning left from Morton onto South Main.

A Virginia man's car was struck by a semi-trailer truck on the northwest corner of the public square about three o'clock Saturday afternoon. Officers noted that a car driven by William V. Bell, headed south around the square, struck the truck driven by James Owen Higginson of Tampa, Fla.

Lincoln's Time, Ours Are Similar

Scranton Claims

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton, appearing as the anniversary speaker in Abraham Lincoln's home town, drew some parallels Saturday between present troubled times and those of the Great Emancipator.

"If Thoreau had been living today, he probably would have burned his draft card," the Pennsylvania governor said in a prepared speech.

Scranton made the remark in discussing the Mexican War, which was unpopular to the intellectuals of 1845 and about which Lincoln entertained reservations. The modern counterpart is in reference to the hostilities in Viet Nam.

Scranton appeared before the Abraham Lincoln Association on the occasion of the 175th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

Scranton told the assembly that Lincoln "insisted that the nation's aims be defined in moral as well as military terms," said Scranton. "He did not believe that the minority party in time of war should abdicate its responsibility to criticize."

The politics of the times, Scranton noted, were also similar to ours, especially in areas of extremism and idealism.

"Lincoln dealt forthrightly with extremism. He said it had no legitimate connection with true conservatism," said Scranton.

The governor added that if the "know-nothings," the extremists of their time, "had not been stubbornly opposed by men like Lincoln, the birth of the new Republican party might have been long delayed or never have taken place."

Scranton said Lincoln and the new party brought morality and idealism to a time dominated "by a Democratic combination bent on achieving consensus that offered something to everybody."

Lincoln, he said, transformed the conservative party by offering idealism and making it the majority party.

"It is entirely in the spirit of Lincoln," Scranton concluded, "that once again our country is in need of such an act of transformation."

Crisis Of Preservation

One does not exaggerate in saying that the United States is facing a crisis of preservation. This applies to buildings and sites of historic significance. It applies to various parts of our natural heritage — shoreline, wilderness country, wild rivers, California's vanishing stands of giant redwoods.

Our population is growing and spreading at such a rate that, unless swift action is taken, many things that ought to be preserved for Americans yet unborn will be lost forever. Scenes of historic interest, and places of exceptional beauty, will be engulfed by exploitation and the works of man. That would not be progress, though some appear to think so; that would be a cruel loss to future generations.

One of the brightest jewels in America's crown is her system of national parks and national forests. Thanks to the vision of men now long gone, this system has preserved large areas in more or less their natural state for the enjoyment of all. The wisdom of this policy is beyond dispute. But now we are rapidly approaching the last moment in history when significant additions can be made, and when areas not yet encroached upon might be kept unspoiled.

An example of particular interest is afforded by the so-called wild rivers bill, which would place sections of seven widely scattered rivers under immediate federal protection. Quick passage is essential, but the chances are that the bill is not even going to be voted on in the House at this session although the Senate has already approved it 71 to 1. Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, who as chairman of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee held up the wilderness bill for years, has made it known that he intends to bottle up the wild rivers bill in committee. The only hope is that those interested in preserving the national heritage can change Aspinall's mind.

High Cost Of Eating

Americans spent more for food in 1965 — about six per cent more — yet at the same time spent less.

The paradox is explained by the fact that average income after taxes was up by six-and-a-half per cent over 1964, meaning that while food spending increased in absolute amounts, as a percentage of income it declined.

The total national food bill was $85.5 billion, reports the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. This averaged out to about $439 for each citizen. Averages are deceiving however.

Single consumers spent an estimated $675 for food compared to about $570 per person for a two-person family and $285 per person for a family of six or more.

Americans spent another $12 billion, says the institute, for alcoholic beverages.

Dear Ann:

Proposed "Study Hour" Protested

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: We have two teen-age children whose grades range from fair to poor. Every teacher they have had in the last four years has said the same thing: "Very bright—but not working up to ability."

I was a teacher myself so I know all about kids who don't work up to their ability. My husband is a teacher, too, but he says he rides herd on kids all day and he wants to relax when he comes home.

Last week I hit on a solution. I decided from 7:00 P.M. to 8:00 P.M. would be "study hour." During this time there would be no stereo, no radio, no TV and no telephoning. All members of the family would study together.

Last night my husband said the plan was crazy and that I should make the kids have their study hour before he gets home at 5:00 P.M. What do you think of a father who doesn't want to sacrifice this hour to help his children? —THE SWITCH FROM WICHITA

Dear Ann Landers: I see no reason for parents to give up TV, radio or anything else to get their kids to study. Students should study because it is their job — their responsibility. Any other approach is nonsense.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read "another" letter in your column from a grandmother who complains because her married children depend on her to baby-sit, nurse their sick and have a big wedding for

Check Frankfurter Labels

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Q — How can I be sure that the frankfurters I buy do not contain any pork meat?

A — First, insist on federally inspected meat. Then check the label. For example, if frankfurters are labeled "all beef," only meat from beef animals can be used. Federal regulations do not even permit the use of scraps of cut-off beef fat or other beef by-products in "all beef" frankfurters. In contrast, frankfurters labeled as "all meat" can be a combination of meats such as beef, pork and mutton. If frankfurters contain cereals, however, they can't be labeled either as "all beef" or "all meat," but must be labeled as "frankfurters, cereal added."

Q — Is it true that we Americans are eating fewer eggs than we used to?

A — Yes, that's true. We averaged 393 eggs apiece in 1951; now we're down to about 307 in 1965, according to the December issue of the Farm Index.

"This Nut Out Here Says He Wants 'em Not Only Pretty but SAFE!"

Washington GOP Task: Control of and Help From Party Rightists

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—When the Republican National Committee meets these days under Chairman Ray Bliss, there are no surface signs of excitement.

But here and there one can tap an underground stream that still runs strong with the old ideological cross currents.

On the surface, the sessions are largely a thing of color slide charts, opinion research figures, talk of electronic data processing and other new techniques, an exchange of all kinds of technical information.

Meantime, beneath these display racks of political "nuts and bolts," the familiar party ferment can be detected.

Meeting a young moderate, an unwavering Goldwater-Republican said with a sneer:

"I suppose you want to win!" The young man said he did, indeed. Recalling the encounter to other Republicans later he said he still has trouble with rigid rightists in his home state. He added:

"I tell 'em they cussed FDR, they cussed Harry Truman, they cussed John F. Kennedy and now they cuss LBJ. And what did they get? They got the New Deal, the Fair Deal, the New Frontier and the Great Society."

"But they still sit there rocking in and rocking out!" Held below the visible level at this year's GOP meeting was a strong effort by the party's state chairmen, who met on their own, to bring those lesser but very noisy bastions of Goldwaterism—the Young Republicans and the Republican Women's Federation—under tighter general party control.

The chairmen adopted a resolution urging that an inquiry be made into relations between these auxiliaries and the senior party. The point is plain—the assumption is, of course, that any such action would be a hostile flag waved in the faces of rightists whose energies are needed in the precincts.

It is said, however, that the state chairmen were told they could be as tough as they liked in disciplining either Young Republicans or Women's Federation units in their states—and that those local units would not be allowed any appeal to the national level.

How this will sit with the national leadership of the two auxiliaries, in the absence of a formal party declaration, is not altogether clear.

One thing the state chairmen's undertaking did make clear: Their own organization is exhibiting new vitality. If they keep on, some of Bliss' charts may begin to jump a little.

The subject was "Is God Dead?" and the captains of commerce probed it at the beef-and-bible luncheon as they would a particularly vexing business problem.

"Some people seem to think that God finished the Creation, then died or moved away or forgot it," said one man.

"But if you look here in verse 17, there is a continuity of Divine action. It says God has not left Himself without witness, in that He did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness."

One of the discussion leaders was Fred R. Esty, president of the United States Banknote Corp.

He said: "The Apostle Peter understood Jesus when he said to him, 'Lord, to whom shall we give thanks? For Thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.'"

"The thing they want to do now is to separate Jesus Christ from a dead God and leave Him there just an earthly Jesus. But in Revelation 1:8, Jesus says, 'I am He that liveth, and was

The late Ely Culbertson was not only one of the greatest bridge theorists and writers of all time but he was one of the most imaginative players.

Ely's motto at the card table might well have been "Always Attack." He was definitely an apostle of the theory that you won't get anywhere if you won't take chances.

Here is a hand that helped his team win the national board-a-match team championship of 1931.

He sat West and opened one spade. He had a sound opening bid in the Culbertson or any other system and, needless to say, he was rather surprised to find his opponents at three no-trump when it next became his turn to bid.

He passed. There was no point in taking further action because his partner could not hold much, but there was quite a problem about the opening lead.

His normal lead would be a spade but Ely felt that South would not have jumped to three no-trump with only one spade stopper. He could still have led that spade and if the lead did not work no one would criticize him, but Ely thrived on criticism. Furthermore, he wanted to win and after considerable study Ely opened the jack of hearts.

South gave the hand the old college try and went up with dummy's king but nothing could help him. South had to go on clubs. Ely took his ace and continued hearts so that his side eventually collected six tricks and set South two.

Ely's team partners, Johnny Rau and Billy Barrett, also reached three no-trump with the North-South cards but they did not have Ely on lead against them. Their West was kind enough to open a spade and Johnny Rau who sat South, wound up making five no-trump when West did not take his ace of hearts.

FINDING THE WAY

Home Nurtures Faith

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Just at the moment when there are exciting debates concerning God and his church and his will, there is a perilous bankruptcy in the life and thought of too many of us.

The name of God is debated but what "God" means only God knows. The word becomes secularized or sentimentalized.

The ancient commandment concerning not taking the name of God in vain has been most commonly interpreted as a prohibition of profanity; it is also concerned with the emptiness of usage. We confront an illiteracy which demands new attention in our homes.

It is illustrated at the bedside of the dying. There is no time now for theological discussion.

Now one reaches through the confusions and sedatives to say the Twenty-third Psalm. Time after time the lips have moved to say the words, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, Thou art with me."

The anguish is assuaged as the familiar words are remembered, "Nothing can separate us from the love of God." So one reaches into the well of the subconscious to pull out those words which were once learned and had become a quiet remembrance of larger facts.

Suppose now that there is no remembrance. Imagine growing up without these words. Consider the impoverishment of spirit that has no word to come to the lips. There is an infinite sadness and loneliness of the unimagined and the unexplored.

More important, it is true, as Bonhoeffer once insisted, that words of faith lead to do with the center of life as well as the fringes. It deals with the vigor of the faith, not just the weak knees, the prison of our coins to the in a time when the very nature of God is discussed in the news-events.

This is a time to recall the words of our heritage, to read the simple but profound words of faith as well as the we can understand. That might rings. papers, it is sad to have men talking from heresy instead of from personal experience.

This is a matter that centers in the family, and the church has no more important function than to guide, sustain and assist.

In ancient history the home was the center of the teaching of the faith. The old catechism said, "To be taught by the head of the household." If that sounds quaint, let it be remembered that this referred to the father.

In our discussions of prayers in schools and the teaching of faith in higher education we neglect the important area of personal responsibility. It is in the home that the child can learn that basic awareness upon which he can build. Think what it would mean for a child to learn the words of the ancient prophet, "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?" GIFT TAX MISCONCEPTIONS

Although many people are aware that the federal government imposes a tax on gifts, a great many misconceptions exist about the tax.

First, if a gift tax is due, it is paid by the donor or giver. The philosophy is that, if a person has sufficient assets to give some away, he undoubtedly has enough left to pay all of the tax on the gift. The recipient would be liable only if the donor failed to pay the tax.

The recipient does not have to include the property received as income. For example, if you receive $50,000 in cash or property, you pay no income tax on that $50,000. But you would pay income tax on the interest that money earned in the bank or on the earnings of property given to you.

Can a father "sell" land worth $400 an acre to his son for $1 an acre? Certainly, and it would be a valid contract. But because the parties are closely related, the father is assumed to have made a gift. The gift is measured by the difference between the selling price and the fair market value of the property—in this case $399 per acre.

Most of the confusion arises regarding the exclusions and exemptions from the gift tax. Each and every year you are allowed to give $3,000 in cash or property to as many people as you wish. Theoretically, you could give $3,000 to every person in the United States this year, the same amount next year and as long thereafter as your bank account permitted. No tax would be due on these gifts.

If you wanted to give any one person more than $3,000 in any one year, however, you would be required to file a gift tax return by April 15 of the year following the gift. Even then you might not be required to pay a gift tax, because you also have a lifetime exemption of $30,000.

For example, if you want to give each of your four children $4,000 this year, you are giving each an "extra" $1,000. You can elect to deduct the total of these "extra" gifts, $4,000, from your $30,000 lifetime exemption. In the future, you can continue making "extra" gifts (amounts over $3,000 per recipient) until you use up your remaining lifetime exemption of $26,000. Once you have exhausted your lifetime exemption, there will be a gift tax on each gift in excess of $3,000 a year to any one person.

The exemptions and annual exclusions are doubled if you and your wife elect to treat the gift as having been made by both of you. A married couple, then, could give $6,000 a year to each child, grandchild or friend without going into their total lifetime exemptions of $60,000.

If estate and inheritance taxes are a major concern and you are considering making gifts during your lifetime, you should consult your attorney before making the gifts. Once made, the gifts may be irrevocable.

More Corn, Soybeans Into Export Channels Features Grain Trade

International trade in grain is in for a period of expansion in which all segments of U. S. trade—from farmers to exporters—will participate, according to Edward W. Pierce, vice president of the Continental Grain Co.

In appraising the future of exports at the recent Agricultural Foreign Trade Conference at the University of Illinois, Pierce said that exports have been the biggest growth factor in our grain markets. They now exceed domestic use of wheat and take more than 20 percent of our feed grain crop and about 40 percent of our soybeans as beans, oil or meal.

In the past five years, wheat exports have increased 42 percent; corn, 160 percent; soybeans as beans, 52 percent; soybean oil, 40 percent; and soybean meal, 210 percent.

Pierce identified the three major markets for U. S. exports as the developed nations of the free world, developing countries, and communist countries, either developed or developing.

Although some developed countries have food surpluses, others such as Japan and those of western Europe, have food deficits. This group accounts for most of our commercial grain exports. (Commercial exports are sold for dollars in contrast with other exports, which are shipped under special government programs.)

Even to Common Market. Pierce said that there had been some pessimism about the future of our grain exports to countries of the European Economic Community (Common Market) because of their trend toward nationalism and self-sufficiency in agriculture. But actually the demand for feed grain and oilseeds, largely U. S. corn and soybeans, has generally been increasing since the establishment of the Common Market. The reason is that consumption of meat, milk and eggs has been increasing faster than grain production in these countries.

Evidence is that the demand for U. S. grain and oilseeds will increase in Japan. And other developed countries outside the Common Market, such as Spain, are expected to use grain faster than they can produce it.

In the foreseeable future, most developing countries will have to be net importers of food. In those countries with the largest population most of the increase in food production will be offset by the population growth. Even though these countries need more food, there are some convincing arguments against importing of food by an agricultural country like India. Pierce said. The way to increase production of any goods is through specialization, improved technology and increased use of capital. In other words, the developing countries must industrialize their agriculture.

Politics, Humanity. Nevertheless, Pierce contends that the U. S. will continue large shipments of food to developing countries because of our high production, the sharp adjustments we would have to make if we suddenly stopped our food aid programs, the political aspects of such aid, the need for food in these countries and purely humanitarian reasons.

Although selling agricultural products to communist countries is a controversial subject, these facts must be realized, Pierce noted:

—Communist countries now account for more than one-third of world net imports of wheat and flour.

—Except for P. L. 480 sales of U. S. wheat to Poland and Yugoslavia, grain sales to communist countries have been on terms of cash or commercial credit, and payments on credit sales have been made promptly.

—Communist countries have had little trouble in getting adequate supplies of wheat from the free world on commercial terms. Only the U. S. makes special rules for trade with them.

Few Restrictions. —There are few restrictions on commercial sales of most other U. S. agricultural commodities to most Soviet bloc countries except that one must get an export license. These licenses have been freely granted on soybeans, tallow and recently on feed grains in large volume.

—The President's State of the Union message indicates that the administration favors increased trade with Eastern Europe and Russia.

—Soviet bloc demand for all cereal grains and oilseeds is increasing faster than domestic production, as evidenced by increased imports of feed grains and soybeans by these countries.

—Because of national policy, we do not trade with Communist China. But during the past five years China has taken from 175 to 200 million bushels of wheat per year from the free world on commercial terms.

Pierce believes it is significant that a poor totalitarian government like China will allocate scarce foreign exchange to buy food rather than let its people suffer.

Peppy Peppers. As a service project for their club, the Peppy Peppers 4-H members collected donations for muscular dystrophy at the conclusion of their recent meeting. Pamphlets were also distributed to homes telling of the disease. Prior to the service project, the usual club meeting was held with 20 members, three leaders and one guest present.

The pledge to the American flag was led by Donna Mills, and the pledge to the 4-H flag by Kristie Nestler. The program was composed of talks by Phyllis Marshall on "Things to Do Before You Sew," "The Types of Outdoor Meals," by Marilyn Spencer and "Things to Know Before You Buy," by Kristie Nestler.

SOYBEAN SUPPLY UP 18 PERCENT

Demand Also Increases Sharply. The supply of soybeans is much larger than it was a year ago, but part of this increase is balanced by rising demand—especially for soybeans and soybean meal.

Soybean Supply Up 18 Percent. Soybean stocks on January 1 totaled 619 million bushels, according to the USDA. This amount was larger than many traders expected, and 18 percent larger than the total a year earlier.

This report tended to confirm the government estimate of the large soybean crop harvested last fall. The last official estimate of the 1965 crop was 844 million bushels, compared with about 700 million bushels harvested in each of the two preceding years.

Stocks of soybeans at mills on January 1 totaled only 104 million bushels, 27 percent less than the previous year. But stocks on farms were estimated at 284 million bushels, up 48 percent. And soybeans stored in elevators and warehouses totaled 231 million bushels, an increase of 20 percent.

Soybean Use At Record Levels. Use of soybeans was held down by shortages at mills during the harvest season, but has reached a record level since then. Crushings totaled only 30 million bushels in September, but increased to 44 million in October, 48 million in November and 49 million in December.

The four-month total crush, 171 million bushels, was only 2 percent over that of the previous year, but the November-December figure was up 12 percent.

Exports Up 19 Percent. The extreme shortage of soybeans in September cut exports to a trickle, but since then shipments have reached record levels. From September 1 to mid-January, exports totaled about 112 million bushels, 19 percent more than a year earlier.

Stocks Of Products Down. Stocks of meal on hand at soybean mills January 1 totaled 75,000 tons, 28 percent less than on the same date the year before. This amount represented only a two-day mill production, whereas a year earlier there was a three-day output.

Stocks of soybean oil at mills on January 1 totaled only 69 million pounds, about half as much as a year earlier. These stocks represented a four-day output. Stocks on hand a year earlier were equal to an eight-day production. These figures cover only soybean oil at the

Beardstown City, Sanitary Heads To View Problem

BEARDSTOWN — Beardstown city officials and members of the board of trustees of the Sanitary district are planning a joint meeting soon to discuss the problems faced in connection with the construction of an industrial sewage disposal plant for Oscar Mayer & Company.

At their meeting this week the district trustees proposed the joint session with local aldermen.

W. L. McGinnis, Charles H. Brock and Carl Jolly are members of the board. W. R. Hengford, superintendent and Hal Gilliland, a former member, also attended the session to hear Engineer John Goddell discuss the sewage disposal unit.

Mrs. Robert Huss and Mrs. Max Venters have been appointed as members of the Beardstown Carnegie board by Mayor Tiltitt, with the approval of the city council.

The two ladies will replace Mrs. Kathryn MacCinchie and Mrs. Wally McMillan, both of whom have moved out of town. Mrs. Shirley Gross has been appointed as a member of the board of trustees of Schmitt Memorial hospital to fill the place vacated by Jim Crum.

Mr. Crum, an employee of the First National Bank, has resigned.

oil mills. They do not include oil stored in other places—such as food-processing plants and warehouses.

The demand for soybean products seems very strong. Prices of soybean products are holding up well despite record production. Soybean meal recently was listed at $80.00 a ton, up $9.00 from last year. Soybean oil was listed at 11.7 cents a pound, down 1/2 cent.

At these prices the value of oil and meal obtained from a bushel of soybeans was around $3.14, 12 cents above the previous year. At the same time the price of soybeans (at Chicago) was $2.88 a bushel, 17 cents below last year.

ACROSS THE FIELDS AND FURROWS
with ED GARLICH
FROM A RECENT DROVERS JOURNAL STORY
It appears that hog producers cannot expect profitable returns if they place as much as 65 pounds of pork per person on the market. That amount, under present conditions, would crash the market. So it is obvious that caution will need to be observed in increasing hog breeding herds this year. If it isn't, pork from $15 live hogs will be leading the bargain counters by the winter of 1967-68.
Consumers can expect less than 60 pounds of pork per person in 1966, plus high pork costs, especially in the first six months. Last year they got a bit more than 60 pounds—and farmers got an average of $21.60 for barrows and gilts at 8 markets.
Farmers provided 65 pounds of pork in 1964 and got an average of $15.30 for barrows and gilts. Per capita consumption in 1963 was 65.5 and the price $15.40.
Pigs and People
Many in the industry suggest that hog raisers plan herd expansion by comparing pigs with people as a guide for production. It seems that hog returns in recent years suffer when the number of pigs available for market in any one year approaches 500 head to every 1,000 civilians.

Prayer Poem

Helping Hands

By Mary Pence Claywell

From Bethlehem to Calvary, Dear Lord, the way is rough. And many scarcely make a start, before they give it up. And all along the trail of life, that stretches far away, we're prone to pass the fallen ones, and quietly leave them lay. Of course, we can not "lift" them all, they do not want to "rise." Yet, those who sometimes look the worst, the "wisest" may surprise. We know that Jesus... faltered too, and staggered to and fro. The "Rugged Cross" was heavy, His lagging Steps... were slow. But with the ones who followed Him, was "Simon," willing, strong. Who bore the rough and heavy Cross. And Jesus... struggled on. Of course, our Saviour wasn't down. He was not meant to fall. And all the efforts, some might make. God would not let prevail. But those who fall along life's road are weak, where He was strong. And Jesus would not have us leave a brother, lying prone. Our Lord approves a "Helping Hand," in mercy, reached to them. And should we fail this vital test, "ours" is the greatest "sin!" There's the "Busy Hands," the "Praying Hands," so many we recall. But, "The Helping Hands," God surely Loves the very best... of ALL!

Danny's Big Secret

By John Rankin

Danny is disappointed because he is told that he is too young and too small to join in the hunt for the lost Indian cave. But Danny has a secret of his own that takes him slipping out of the house after everyone is asleep. Meanwhile the bigger boys have actually found what they are sure is the lost cave, but as they start to investigate they slip in and cannot find a way out. Then there is a noise and they wonder if there are still Indians in the old cave.

There was a slight rustle up above just then and something or somebody was peering into the pit. It was Danny! Looking down on the hapless prisoners with a triumphant grin on his boyish features and a rope dangling over one frail shoulder. Joyful cries came from the pit.

"Danny! How did you get here, son?" Mr. Roberts shouted with a sigh of relief. Danny quickly secured the rope to a tree and dangled the loose end down the hole.

"Figured you big tough guys would blunder into this old Indian trap, so I came through the tunnel and waited for you to show up," he said with an air of importance. A little later the puzzled group of explorers followed Danny in to the cave and down a flight of stone steps that led to a rather crudely fashioned but solid rock tunnel. Using their flashlights they pushed on through the dank, midwesty passage until they came to another series of steps that ended in a deserted and tumble-down shack near the river.

Indian Charlie Bob ran to a window in the battered old shack and looked out. "Hey! That's our house up on the hill!" He exclaimed. "And ain't this the hut where that old

"Sure, Indian Charlie," Mel put in quickly. "He knew all about caves and things but most folks thought he was sort of wacky or something."

Mr. Roberts' eyes lit up with understanding as he studied Danny a moment. "Guess Indian Charlie wasn't such an erratic old fellow as most of us believed him to be," he nodded thoughtfully. "Seems he taught you how to reach the lost cave through the tunnel under the river, didn't he, son?"

"He sure did," Danny acknowledged proudly. "But it was supposed to be a secret Indian trap, so I wanted to spring a big surprise on somebody, maybe."

Mr. Roberts pulled Danny to him and jostled him playfully. "It was a well-kept secret and a very pleasant surprise to say the least, son," he grinned.

Where's Stevie?

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Small Stevie played with the tricycle crew pedaling along the level driveway, but today their quick turns were difficult to follow so he left his toy to aimlessly toddle away. Mother looking up from her work saw no Stevie and called from the doorway, "Where's little brother?" Tricycles stopped, why where was he—only moments ago he had wheeled about last in their line.

Quickly Mother circled the house, no Stevie, she ran through the garage, only an empty tricycle waited there. "Stay here," she called, "Answer the telephone if it rings, while I look for Stevie," and she flitted hastily through the neighboring yards asking as she searched, "Have you seen Stevie?"

Down a busy street three blocks away stood a Doctor's office, its waiting room filled with restless patients watching the nurse move in and out. Presently she crossed the room to step into the vestibule and disappear.

Whose Little Boy? When the door reopened there she stood holding a bewildered little boy. "Who belongs to this child?" she asked. "He was on our front steps."

No answer, not one had ever seen him before. "I'll try the telephone," she continued hopefully. "A number of little children live up the street."

From a deep chair came a pleasant voice, "Let me hold him while you call," and Stevie found himself transferred to a comfortable lap. After all he was a bit tired and his feet inside grubby white shoes and clammy socks were cold.

Woolly "Cave" Oh wonders! The lady tucked her soft coat closely about him and doubly wrapped his small feet with her warm hand. Now deep in snug folds, only two bright eyes peering from the woolly cave-like opening, as the nurse telephoned. "Is your Mother at home?" "No," a wavering voice answered. "She's out looking for Stevie."

"Well, tell her when she comes back, that he is safe at office." Nothing happened. In ten minutes the call was repeated.

"Well, when she comes back, tell her that he is safe at the Doctor's office."

Mommie Lost Too? "Is your Mommie at home?" "No, she's out looking for Stevie," came the unhappy little wall.

Ten more minutes passed. Mommie appeared to be lost also, but in and out between trees, shrubs and passersby, ran a lady. The nurse hurried outside.

"Are you looking for a little boy?" she called. "He's safe in our office." Up the steps, Mommie flew, and into the waiting room. Strange faces smiled at her reassuringly, and from his woolly cave two round eyes met hers. Happily they went homeward together.

Mommie, waiting patients, Sissy at the end of the telephone line, had each been far more disturbed than lost Stevie.

Mrs. Webster, who teaches Grade 2B at North School in Virginia, sent in the stories "Pet Store" by Michelle Scholes, "Bunny Wins" by Bonnie Moore and "Funny Sight" by Marjorie Sinclair (which appears on this page) and comments "I think these are very good stories for them to write by themselves in class."

Other teachers are invited to send in their pupils' written or art work for this page. Young readers are also invited to send in anything that is all their own work. They may then come in for a JUNIOR JOURNALIST pencil and a PRESS CARD with their name on it.

Let's Go Birding Purple Finch Surprise By Emma Mae Leonhard

The Purple Finch is not an uncommon bird in our area in winter. In deciduous woods, in a wooded area of a town, and even at a bird feeder, this rosy—not really purple—sparrow-sized finch may possibly be found. We must remember that only the male bird is rosy; the female is a heavily striped brown bird. Unfortunately the Purple Finch is not easy to spot. The best way to be aware of its presence is through its metallic "tick, tick" note. When we hear this characteristic call, we begin examining the tops of surrounding trees and may finally locate the bird. If it is a male, its old-rose or raspberry coloring, most intense on head and rump, almost reprimands us for overlooking the bird, but we frequently do pass it by and leave it to its seclusion. Mysterious "Tick Tick" One can imagine our baffled reaction when we searched one afternoon for the source of this "tick, tick" and could not locate it. How disgusted we were with ourselves! We knew exactly from which direction this familiar call originated. Then one of the observers caught the movement of some under an Osage Orange tree, in other words a hedge tree. Hedge balls lay scattered on the ground. Beside one of the large round green fruits sat a bird tearing the sections of the apple apart and throwing fleshy bits around it. At times it paused, seeming to study its exploring, and swallowed something. This bird was evidently feeding upon the hedge ball, and it was a Purple Finch, a rosy-red one too. On our hikes we had often noticed the Osage Orange apples or balls that had been shredded and supposed that squirrels had been the sole carvers. On the ground at the spot where we were standing were several such fruits. We wondered whether the Purple Finch had been one of the diners upon them too. Never before had we observed it at a banquet table, but birds are always seeing some new activity even from common birds. Such an event is one of the charms of birding.

ASTRONAUT WEATHERMEN

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

Many meteorologists thought that unmanned weather satellites, like Tiro and Nimbus, were sufficient for orbital weather watching — until they saw the pictures taken by Gemini astronauts. These photos were often of higher quality than those taken by unmanned satellites. For example, notice how clear the earth is in the picture by Gemini 7 above.

Gordon Vaeth, head of Tiro weather satellite engineering for the U.S. Weather Bureau's National Satellite Center, reported on the possible advantages of manned meteorological observations from space. He pointed out that although meteorology alone is not a big enough job to justify a manned space station it could be an important part of the operations.

Satobs In the course of his paper Vaeth also coined a new word—"Satobs" for satellite observations. This fits in with such common meteorological practices of abbreviations as observations to obs. This makes radiosonde observations become raobs, airplane observations, apobs, and so forth.

There are seven valuable contributions an astronaut can make to meteorology:

1. He can select the best means to investigate the storms below.
2. He can back up the unmanned satellites by checking out their observations.
3. He can test new equipment for the unmanned satellites. One possible test would be to see how long a standby satellite could stay in space ready to replace an operating weather satellite the moment it ceased to operate. Vaeth thinks testing is the most important contribution astronauts can make to meteorology.
4. The astronauts can monitor several experiments at once.
5. The astronaut can discuss his observations with meteorologists on the ground and gather special data they want.
6. As the manned space station spins around earth the astronauts can gather information from buoys, balloons, ships, aircraft and ground stations more quickly than could be done otherwise.
7. Astronauts can also help keeping an unmanned weather satellite network in operation. The Weather Bureau wants this system to keep an eye on all the earth's weather all the time. The astronauts can aid in this by keeping a check on the unmanned satellites and repairing them.

Because of these valuable contributions Vaeth urged that meteorologists and space station planners work more closely together.

Thos. Harrison Young Scientist

Thomas Allen Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrison of Virginia, has made his debut in the field of science. He celebrated his eighth birthday in October and is a student in the third grade.

When a science book was received by his class recently, a project that appealed to him was brought to the attention of the students by his teacher, Mrs. Lois Achue. Tom volunteered to try it.

Rings Bell It required a switch to be hooked to a battery to ring a bell. Three connected hookups were necessary and after much experimenting, he was successful.

Monday morning, he carried his accomplishment to school where he demonstrated it and answered questions.

He is a good student, takes part in school activities and is interested in sports. He is a member of the Grace Lutheran Sunday School.

To Frisco By Way Of N.Y.C.

The big news in Jacksonville a hundred years ago was the disappearance of the town collector, taking with him the entire cash account. Speculation on the amount varied from $4,000 to as much as $8,000. Nobody seemed to have any clear idea.

And nobody seemed to have any idea where he went. Finally a friend recalled that the town collector had said a week or so earlier that he would like to see California and that he intended to go there some day.

One of his bondsmen who also happened to be a rich and very successful businessman, Martin Cassell, immediately telegraphed his description to a lawyer friend in New York City and told him precisely what to do.

This procedure now seems a little queer; why would anybody look in N.Y.C. for a man who intended to go to California?

But in those days the easiest way to get to the Golden State was through New York or New Orleans. For the absconder the former was the quickest and easiest, for in February, 1866, steamboats were running on the Mississippi only between Memphis and the Crescent City.

Steamships left New York twice a week regularly for runs to Aspinwall, New Granada, Aspinwall, New known as Colon, Panama. They were met by the Panama Railroad, one of the shortest railroads in the world and by all odds the most profitable per mile.

The day after the ship arrived the passenger and his baggage were in Panama City where he could board a steamship bound for San Francisco.

Gold Mine On Wheels
The Panama railroad, completed in 1855, was 47 1/2 miles long. The fare was 50¢ per mile, with a baggage charge of 5¢ per pound. The money simply rolled in and the stock sold for $250 on the New York Stock Exchange for years. But nobody cared to sell his stock, for it paid a dividend of $12.50 twice a year, in gold. This was a mighty sweet return for stock that was bought for $60 to $80 a share when the railroad company was organized.

The road continued to make money by the barrel until the canal was finished. But before that the U.S. had to buy the company at a very handsome price to get the franchise to build the canal. Earlier the company sold the railroad to France when that country tried to build the canal and when the canal combine went broke the company got its railroad back, for free.

Which was indeed a good deal, for the stockholders. Cassell's lawyer friend in New York City was a Tammany leader. He immediately spread the description to the police and in a couple of hours our wandering boy was safe behind bars awaiting the arrival of his friend from Jacksonville.

Not Too Bad
Cassell found things weren't in too bad shape. When the collector headed east to go to California he had $7,642, the entire town treasury, with him. He had spent only $400, including the fare of $350 to San Francisco, which the high-flying company refused to refund.

Cassell took his man and the money in charge and came back to Jacksonville. Cassell was able to keep the collector out of the penitentiary for the town was indeed very happy to get its money back. The trustees did feel it best, however, to accept his resignation.

Cassell put him to work in his cigar and tobacco shop. He lived an industrious and peevish life, opening up at 6 a.m. and locking up at 10 p.m. When he wasn't waiting on customers he stripped tobacco leaf or packed cigars. He paid off his shortages and when he had saved enough money he did go to California — this time on the recently completed Union Pacific-Central Pacific transcontinental line. His descendants are reported as doing very well on the west coast, so perhaps there is no sense in using his name in this story.

Another Incident
But some 40 years later a city treasurer left Jacksonville without leaving a forwarding address, which turned out in Pasadena, Calif. When he didn't show up at his usual haunts the city fathers looked into the matter and found that the treasurer was bare — to the tune of $44,424.

This was indeed most distressing information. The erst-while treasurer had a very dear friend occupying the governor's mansion in Springfield, and this friend declined to ask the governor of California to make arrange-

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal: INDUSTRIAL UNIVERSITY — A meeting of the citizens of Murrayville, called to hear a lecture from J. B. Turner on the utility of locating the proposed Industrial University of Illinois in this county, on motion, Sampson Fanning was appointed chairman and William C. Purnell secretary. After hearing the learned lecturer there was a unanimous expression of opinion for taxing Morgan County to the extent of three hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of locating said institution in this county.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: THE INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE — Prof. J. B. Turner addressed meetings of the citizens of Morgan at Murrayville on Monday night, and at Union church, in Jacksonville precinct, on Tuesday night, of this week, on the subject of the location of the Industrial College at Jacksonville.

We learn that the remarks of Prof. Turner were well calculated to awaken an interest in this subject, and that resolutions were adopted at both meetings favoring the levying of a tax on the property of the county to raise the bonus required to secure the location of the College in Jacksonville.

Prof. Turner has appointments to address the people at Mercedosa and Bethel on the same subject next week. The people are awakening to the importance of this question.

The people of Morgan county certainly backed Prof. Turner, giving him all the encouragement and support he asked for. The learned gentleman had devoted much time toward the establishment of the university ever since he outlined the need for it, and what its aims should be, at a meeting of farmers in Granville, Putnam county, Nov. 18, 1851.

He worked hard on the project and received considerable help from all classes, but also ran up against some pretty strong opposition — mainly from other college professors who decried education for farmers and mechanics. Their idea of education was loads of Greek, Latin and theology.

Aided by Ezra Cornell of New York Turner got Justin S. Morrill, senator from Vermont, to introduce the land grant college bill in 1858. It sailed through Congress in short order, but President Buchanan vetoed it.

During the 1860 campaign Turner met Lincoln between trains at Decatur and later he talked with his friend Douglas on a train near Peoria. Both presidential candidates assured him that, if elected, he would see the bill got on the floor and if passed he would sign it.

The Morrill Land Grant bill was signed by Lincoln in 1862. For some time Turner was confident Morgan county would get the university, as it made by far the best offer of any place — in cash, land, buildings, public support. But he later found he had run into something pretty serious — the 100% opposition of the most powerful outfit in the state, the Illinois Central railroad, who wanted it on their line in eastern Illinois. The university went to Champaign county and Turner snorted that "it is the first time I ever saw a valuable property knocked down to the lowest bidder."

Which was precisely the truth. Wm. H. Herndon, of Springfield, delivered a partisan political lecture before the Jacksonville Library Association, at ments for his pal's return to Illinois. A pair of aldermen saw a chance to get a free trip to California in hopes of getting the money back. They got to Pasadena O.K., but left in a very large hurry to escape the gendarmes, as they were charged with attempt to kidnap, which is a rather serious offense to face — especially if you are 2,000 miles from home.

He Started Something
This man prospered mightily and became quite a leader in the Pasadena community. One New Year's Day he decorated his team and buggy with the beautiful flowers of the season and drove around town. A year later quite a number of his friends dolled up their rigs, and together they formed a very nice parade. It was determined to make it an annual affair, and guess who was elected chairman of the committee in charge? Right you are, and he remained the general chairman of the Tournament of Roses for more than 15 years and in his lifetime it became a world-famous institution.

I like to watch at least a portion of the parade each New Year's Day, especially since it comes by color tube. I like to think that a Jacksonville man, aided by Jacksonville money, started the whole thing.

— Cecil Tendick

Strawn's Hall, on Friday. Subject, "Patriotism and Statesmanship of Abraham Lincoln." The lecture was delivered to an almost "beggarly" account of empty boxes, the subject indicating to our citizens that the entertainment would be merely a political stump speech, which impression was justified by the result.

The Jacksonville Library Association was organized for strictly literary objects, and we should be sorry to see it prostituted in the future to mere partisan purposes.

It would be interesting to know what Billy Herndon, Lincoln's junior law partner, said that riled the hair of Editor Bailey. Sometime later Bailey took after Herndon again, calling him a "miserable abolition pup hatched by the vile incubator of such scum, Illinois College."

The editor recalled that Billy's father had taken him out of Illinois College, but he did it too late "after the child was spilled and the die was cast." From the Carrollton Gazette: Those parties who have contracted and paid for advertisements in our paper had better hand them in, that they may be perused by our readers.

We are this week compelled to leave out a number of advertisements, for want of time to set them up. We will endeavor to have them next week.

The parties who were digging that large well near the depot have been compelled to abandon it on account of it frequently caving and have begun another with more favorable prospects.

The Illinois river remains blocked with ice and the upper Mississippi packets above Alton have not come out from their winter quarters.

DOMESTIC

February, 1866
An economical view of homicide is taken by the Caluso (Cal.) SUN, in the following item: "The sheriff of Sutter County, killed a thief last week, who was attempting to escape, thereby saving the county considerable cash."

Benjamin Pinney, a wealthy farmer at Rockport, Ill., was recently poisoned to death with strychnine by his fifth wife, a pretty girl whom he married six weeks ago.

A special train went through from Boston to Portland on Saturday with a single passenger — a gentleman, who had engaged his passage on the European steamer, missed the morning train, and paid $300 to reach the latter place on time.

The question "Is a death-bed marriage legal?" is being tried in the Circuit Court in Indianapolis. Considerable property is involved in the decision.

Fifteen miles below Franklin, in Western Pennsylvania, an oil well was accidentally set on fire a few days since, the flame at first being small, but defying all attempts to extinguish it. It soon increased in volume, and at last accounts presented a most wonderful appearance, shooting up from sixty to a hundred feet, and lighting the country for many miles. The ground has been heated for several hundred feet, starting vegetation into the greenness of spring. The light is seen at Franklin and points much further distant.

FOREIGN

February, 1866
Bull fights are going out of fashion in Spain, and elephants are now pitted against bulls. A short time since an elephant of the name of Pizarro fought bravely against two young bulls. Wounded in the trunk, he first drew back, hesitated, then seizing one of the bulls by the neck he sent it rolling away like a ball, and meanwhile crushed the ribs of the other under his enormous feet.

A Dr. Thompson Whalley has been arrested in London on a charge of defrauding the British Prudential Insurance Company, by insuring the lives of some of his patients. In one instance the patient whom he had insured died of a cancer in the rectum, an incurable complaint. The prisoner was committed for trial.

Spain has issued letters of marque against Chili. The Prussian Chamber of Deputies have passed a resolution, by a large majority, protesting against the attempt of the Supreme Court to restrict liberty of speech.

HUMORS of the day

February, 1866
What length ought a lady's crinoline to be? A little above two feet.

"The rich," said the Jew, "eat mutton because it is dear."

Why is electricity like the police when they are wanted? Because it is an invisible force. Milton was once asked why he did not teach his daughter a foreign language. "Surely one tongue is enough for a woman!" was his reply.

What is the difference between homicide and pig-butcher? One is assault with intent to kill; the other, kill with intent to salt.

A gentleman who takes the morning journals, and whose attention is apt to be monopolized by them, remonstrated one day with his wife coming down to breakfast in curlpapers, when the lady replied, "If you indulge in your papers, I don't see why I shouldn't enjoy mine."

soil you won't be far off with this simple guide. For each extra 1,200 kernels you plant apply about 25 pounds of nitrogen, 12 pounds of phosphate, 12 pounds of potash.

4. Control weeds. Weeds compete with corn for moisture and plant food. Apply a good pre-emergence herbicide at planting time.

5. Control insects. Ignore insect control and you may gamble away a good share of the profits.

None of these five points are new, but doing an outstanding job on all five points will produce an outstanding yield.

Now you should . . .

Be patient.

Make summer vacation plans.

Finish repairing machinery.

Give Valentines.

Talk about the weather.

Order seed.

Get ready to sow grass and legume seed as soon as possible. Look into pasture fertilization. This is a practice that is greatly neglected. With good stands of productive plants it is very worthwhile.

After the cold spell the general complaint about cars is that motors won't start and payments won't stop.

GARY ORGAN of McLEANSBORO, president of the Illinois association, Future Farmers of America, came to Jacksonville last week to express his appreciation to the Farmers State Bank for its continuing support of the Future Farmers Foundation.

Have you planned for this year's corn production? Consider this five point program.

1. Plant a high potential hybrid. Use a hybrid that can stand the stress of thick planting and will respond to the high rates of fertilization. Be sure it is adapted to this area, is resistant to disease, lodging and picks well, too. Talk to your local seed man—he can make the best recommendation.

2. Plant thick and early. It takes 21,000 half-pound ears to produce 150 bushels per acre. HOSPITAL ALUMNAE HAS MEETING

Our Saviour's-Holy Cross alumnae met Tuesday, Feb. 8 at the Blackhawk restaurant.

A Valentine motif was carried out by the officers, who served as the hostesses for the evening. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Mary Logue.

A social hour was held, during which a white elephant sale, conducted by the ways and means committee, netted $12 for the treasury. The Valentine center piece was won by Mrs. Betty Boston.

The next regular meeting will be held April 5 with Miss Betty Hall and Mrs. Anna Coates serving as hostesses.

AFRICAN ART SHOW

OXFORD, England (AP) — The new art gallery of the Pitt Rivers Museum opened with an exhibition called "Art from the Guinea Coast." It consists of 120 specimens of West African work in bronze, terra cotta and wood carving.

Art flourished in Africa between the third century before Christ and A.D. 200.

ED GARLICH started his ninth year as farm manager of the Elliott State bank Wednesday and when he got to his office he found Earl Parsons of Galesburg waiting for him. Parsons is the senior loan appraiser of the Equitable Life Assurance Co., which takes over long-term farm loans from the bank.

Parsons had a certificate of recognition with him, for the Elliott bank was among the top 10 in the district in "generating" farm loans. The district is made up of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and the western side of Ohio.

Mortgage loans amounting to $267,000 were completed by the bank last year. There were 10 loans. Eight of them were for enlarging a profitable farm business, one was to buy out the other heirs and one was made by a man who is using the money for a professional education, with hopes of earning enough money later to pay off the mortgage and keep the land in the family.

Before becoming farm manager for the bank Garlich was Morgan county farm adviser for 13 years and held the same post in Brown county 10 years.

MORE THAN 170 Morgan county farm people attended the annual meeting of the Soil & Water Conservation district held last Monday night at the Masonic Temple.

Myers is retiring after serving six years, two years as president. Dale Lepper of Ashland will take his place.

The speaker of the evening was Cap Smith, public relations man for the National Stockyards. His theme was "The American Miracle, the Greatest Story Ever Told."

CASS MELON GROWERS TO MEET

VIRGINIA — R. D. Meridith, Cass county farm adviser announces that a melon school will be held February 17 at the Beardstown high school. The meeting will be in the Vo-Ag classrooms, located in the new part of the high school building.

Joe Vandemark of the University of Illinois will bring us up-to-date on all the latest information," Meridith says.

"Melons are an important cash crop on some farms in Cass county. Acreage will vary from a few up to 25 or more."

The meeting will be sponsored by the Extension Service in Cass county.

Tired Business Men Start 100-Mile Run

By L'W HEAD
MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — 20 pounds and was almost cured A bunch of tired New Jersey business men, including a 65-year-old, were off today on a 100-mile run.
They were off Thursday, too, when he joined the group. "Now and the day before, and will be I'm running on the balls of my again, because naturally they feet and haven't felt so well aren't running that distance all since I rowed on the Cornell at once. They're doing it in bite-freshman crew in 1921," he told an interviewer.
Object: healthier hearts and trimmer waistlines.
Some run a quarter of a mile at a lick. Hardier types gallop up to six miles. They do this five days a week.
By the time they have all completed their 100 miles around the Morristown High School cinder track, Robert Freeman figures they will be in pretty good shape.
Freeman, physical director of the Morristown YMCA, started the 100-mile conditioning program for sedentary citizens two years ago. The present class numbers 40.
"They run no matter what the weather, and have made tremendous improvement in their hearts and waistlines," Freeman reported.
Roger Boda, a 37-year-old lithographer, said he had shed 20 pounds and was almost cured of his severe asthma. "I've had to buy new clothes but look at the saving in doctor bills."
Al Dodson, 65, had flat feet when he joined the group. "Now I'm running on the balls of my feet and haven't felt so well since I rowed on the Cornell freshman crew in 1921," he told an interviewer.
"Running gives a flush to the circulation," said Maxwell Pollock, 50, a chemist. "Walking is great but it takes too long to get the same effect. Who has time to walk two hours a day?"
Lawrence Mills, 49, a deputy county clerk, said he weighed 212 when he first faced the starting line and felt sleepy all the time. "Now I'm a wide-awake 153 pounds."
Said Freeman: "Some of these men couldn't run a quarter-mile when they started. Now most of them run three miles a night and some run up to six."
"Among athletes the best hearts are in long-distance runners and they live longer. Your body is like your car — if you only drive it as far as the corner grocery once a week the valves start rusting."

Eisenhower Outshoots JHS In 80-61 Victory

Carrollton Grabs League Lead, 56-52

WHITE HALL — The Carrollton Hawks assured themselves of at least a share of the IVC title, here Friday night, as the visitors came from behind to capture a 56-52 triumph over the host North Greene Spartans.

Carrollton, now 5-0 in league play, has a Friday night home contest with Greenfield remaining, while North Greene has completed their loop card with a 5-1 mark.

The tight contest, which was tied on 11 occasions, saw the Hawks gain the lead for good with 6:44 to go on a bucket by Dennis Bryant and coast home via conversions from the charity stripe.

Mike Brannan and Bryant combined for 11 free throws on 14 attempts during the decisive frame to lead the victors' 19-16 domination of the final period.

Carrollton, whose attack yielded fewer shots from the field, hit at a 47% clip, while the locals netted at a 33% average.

A record crowd witnessed the Spartans grab a 14-9 spread at the first stop, before they marched to an 18-11 lead with 6:30 remaining in the first half.

Hawks Get Rolling

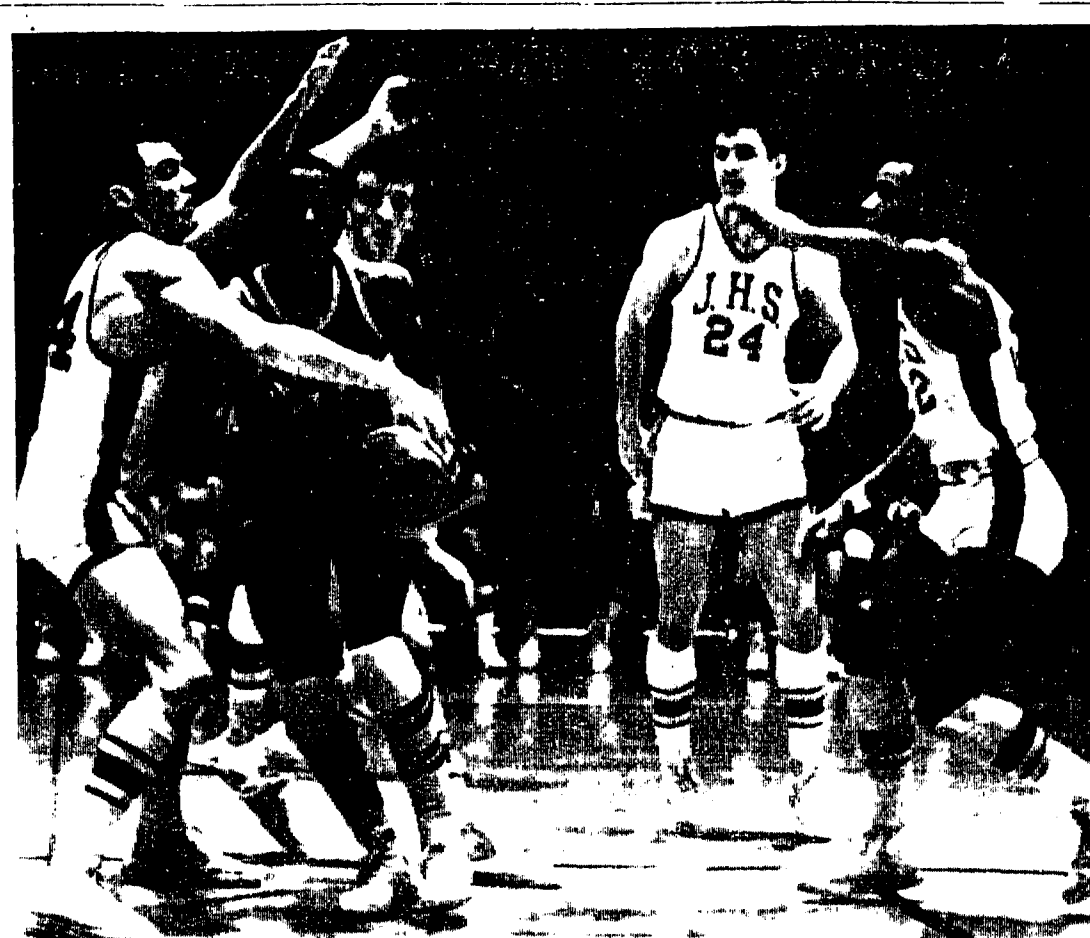

Brannan got the Hawks rolling in the mid-frame action, however, as the visitors collected eight straight to lead by 20-18.

Gaining control again, North Greene took the lead back with 2:00 to go in the session, and held on to gain a 28-26 intermission spread.

The locals held the advantage throughout most of the third round action, but a surging Carrollton unit tied the count at 35-35 with 3:50 to go, before taking a 37-36 lead into the decisive quarter.

Gary James paced all scorers for the night with 23, while Bob Kerr added 17 more for the now 13-6 Spartans.

The Hawks, presently standing 13-7 for the year, were led by Brannan's and Bryant's 19 and 18-point contributions.

REACHING OVER: Jacksonville's Ron Coleman reaches over Decatur Eisenhower's driving Mahlon Sanders and draws a personal in the process. Three other Crimsons are shown going for Sanders, I-r Steve Simonds, Rich Coble and Abe Brown.

Triopia Trips Comets By 45-42

CHANDLERVILLE — Triopia encountered, all three schools turned the PMSC race into a toss-up here Friday night, as they hung-on to a 24-13 first half domination to capture a 45-42 triumph over a surging Chandlerville quintet.

The local Comets, who recorded a 39% shooting clip for the night, could only manage five of 21 attempts in the first half, to hand the visitors a spread which they never lost.

The loss drops Chandlerville to a 5-2 PMSC status, while the victorious Trojans now stand 4-2 in league play.

The idle Porta Bluejays moved into the conference lead as a result of Triopia's win, but have to take-on the Trojans in Chapin Saturday night.

If Triopia should take the encounter, all three schools would tie for league honors. Meredosia and Virginia also stand a chance in the final tally, as they also have only lost two conference battles.

Numerous turnovers, combined with their failure to hit from the field left the Comets on the short end of 12-6 and 24-13 counts after the first and second stanzas.

IST POLO — TRIPIA

Jim Paul, who paced the victory effort with 20-points, connected for 14 tallies before the intermission on field goals from the 15 to 20 foot range.

Trailing by 24-13 at the half-way point, Chandlerville moved to within three at 33-30 in the opening minute of the fourth quarter, but failed to close the gap any further.

The victory lifts Triopia to a 13-7 rating for the year, to an 18-5 mark for the hosts.

Paul led all scorers for the night with 20, while Bill Collins and Wayne Gurnsey netted 13 and 12 respectively for the Comets.

Clay Continues Work Despite Draft Chance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay went through a business-as-usual workout Friday for his scheduled title fight despite the possibility he might be marching instead of boxing on March 29.

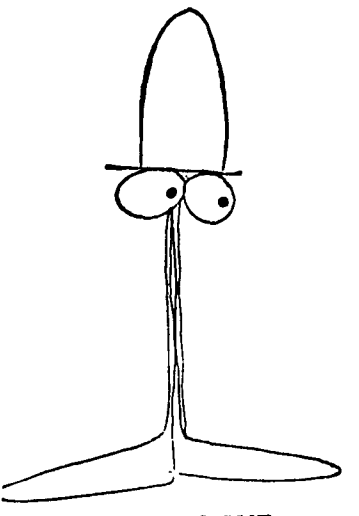

Clay hit the bags, shadow-boxed and did table calisthenics for 90 minutes without mentioning to trainer Angelo Dundee that he had received his reclassification papers. Dundee said, "It was the same as ever," said Dundee, who tried to be philosophical about the possible loss of his champ before the Ernie Terrell bout, now scheduled for Chicago.

"This Uncle Sam don't knock out easy," Dundee said. "He's a pretty good banger with both hands."

It's not a certainty that Clay will be reclassified, but it seems a good bet.

The chairman of Clay's Louisville draft board, H. Allen Sherman, said that "under new standards given us by the Army I don't see why Clay won't be acceptable for the draft."

Clay flunked the mental test twice in January, 1964, and was classified I-Y. But the war in Viet Nam forced the Army to lower its standards.

Jacks No Match For Hot Panthers

By BUFORD GREEN

The Jacksonville Crimsons were no match for the hot-shooting Eisenhower Panthers, Friday night, as the Decatur club swept past the Jacks in an 80-61 Capitol Conference triumph at the JHS Bowl.

The red-hot shooting percentage turned in by the visiting Panthers was the difference in the game. Eisenhower broke the game open by hitting 13 of 17 shots in a 29-point third quarter, firing at a blazing 59% clip at the end of three rounds and ending up with a 54% rate on 33 of 61 tries.

Still very much in the game until early in the third quarter, the host Crimsons were unable to match the hot pace being set by the Panthers and were out of contention after Eisenhower ran up a 21-point difference late in the third frame.

The victory by Eisenhower gave the winners a 2-1 edge in three meetings between the two clubs this year. The Panthers won by 21 at Decatur early in the season, while JHS triumphed by ten in the Carbondale Tournament. Eisenhower is now 5-1 in the conference and 15-6 on the year. Jacksonville, losing its third straight, fell to 11-9 on the year and 2-4 in the league.

A very balanced scoring attack by the winners turned the tide in the game. Carl Jenkins continually bombed from the outside and drove the middle, while sophomore center George Watkins and forward Mahlon Sanders worked well underneath. Those three, along with Guard Gary Hartman all hit in double figures.

Coleman Hot Again

For Jacksonville Ron Coleman turned in another fine offensive effort, netting 23 for the night, including 15 in the first half, while junior Duane Hess hit double figures with 12, ten in the first half. Reserves Bob Donovan and Steve Simonds came off the bench to garner 13 points between them.

Eisenhower never trailed in the game from a 4-0 lead on. The closest Jacksonville got after that was at 4-2 and 6-4. From there Sanders and Hill led the way to a 21-10 spread with ten straight points with 1:10 left in the game. Coleman kept JHS in the running with eight straight points midway through the opener.

Jacksonville closed the gap to five points several times in the second quarter, with Hess and Brown getting the points, and finally drew within three, 36-33, on two buckets by Coleman and a free toss by Simonds with one minute left before half. Sanders' long jumper upped the difference to 38-33 at intermission.

Hit Even 50%

For the half Eisenhower ripped the nets at an even 50% on 15 of 30 tries, and the Panther press caused five JHS turnovers, all of which were turned into buckets.

Eisenhower turned in some almost unbelievable shooting in the third quarter, hitting 11 of their first 12 shots. Watkins, Hill, Sanders and Hartman ran wild in the quarter, with many of the buckets coming through the JHS full-court press.

The Panthers ended up hitting on 13 of their 17 shots in the quarter, with two of the four misses coming on shots when a foul was whistled. By the end of the quarter Eisenhower led by 20, 67-47.

The closest Jacksonville came to Eisenhower in the final eight minutes was 14 points, 71-57, when Donovan and Simonds combined for eight points. From there Watkins broke clear for two layups inside the JHS defense and the reserves finished out the game.

Women Voters League Group Tours IBSSS

A group of eight members of the League of Women Voters of Morgan County and four from the Springfield League of Women Voters participated in a planned tour of Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School and the Illinois School for the Deaf Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 8.

Mrs. Robert Kooker, board member and chairman for the League's study of "welfare services for children in Illinois," made the arrangements for the tour.

The group met with Jack H. Hartong, IBSSS superintendent, and Miss Rose McGuire, elementary principal, to learn something of the history of the Jacksonville institution and the present program and current trends in services rendered blind children in Illinois. They then toured the administration building, the school's library and one of the new dormitories.

At ISD, Dr. Kenneth Mangan, superintendent, explained the organization and program at the school, and guided the group as they visited classrooms and observed children at a reading lesson and in a rhythm class.

Further study by the Morgan County League on this subject will be presented at the regular February meeting, February 17, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Kooker, 801 Lincoln.

Mays Signs 2-Year Pact For $125,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays signed a two-year contract Friday with the San Francisco Giants for an estimated $125,000 a season — a sum which his boss believes tops all salaries in baseball history.

Terms were not divulged, but a Giants' official indicated the National League's Most Valuable Player of 1955 will receive in the neighborhood of $125,000 for each of the two seasons.

Mays said some of the payment will be deferred to future years and added, "my accountant does all the thinking about that."

The 34-year-old All-Star center fielder, who started with the Giants in New York in 1951, told newsmen, "I like a two-year contract. Now all I have to worry about the next two years is playing baseball."

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, declared, "we believe this contract makes Willie the highest salaried player in baseball history."

Didn't Take Long

Mays and Stoneham appeared at Candlestick Park for the announcement. Willie said he had talked with the Giants' owner only five or 10 minutes in arriving at the new pact.

Mays appeared in 157 games last season and led the major leagues with 52 homers and 359 total bases. He was the league leader in runs scored with 119, drove in 112 and compiled a .317 batting average.

He captured the slugging title for the second straight year by posting an average of .645.

Of all that he commented Friday, "I think last year was one of my best."

Several baseball records could fall to him this year, but Mays said, "I never like goals. I don't like to think about them, although they might be within reach."

The San Francisco star already holds the National League record for most home runs by a right-handed hitter with 505 — which means he has traveled 4 miles just running them out.

UP FOR GRABS: The ball goes up for grabs between these four players near the end of the JHS-Eisenhower game Friday night. Battling for the Crimsons are Bob Donovan (20) and Duane Mounts.

Guard Steve Garrison sparked the Bushnell club with 25 points, all coming in the first three quarters on 12 field goals and a lone free throw. Center Alan Rose worked well under the basket for Bushnell, controlling the boards and picking up 19 points. Bradley Allows Allen To Play Saturday Night

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley basketball star Joe Allen, involved in a child support case in Chicago, was given school permission Friday to play in an important Missouri Valley Conference game at Tulsa Saturday night.

At Chicago Thursday, a Circuit Court magistrate released Allen from jail on bond after temporary settlement of arrears in support of his 22-month-old twin sons.

In jail since Tuesday, Allen did not play at Denton, Tex., Thursday night as Bradley defeated North Texas State, 102-90, to move into MVC first-place tie with Cincinnati at 6-3.

Bradley's disciplinary committee and school officials met Friday on Allen's case, granting him permission to play at Tulsa but requesting his appearance at a Monday session to hear "all available facts."

Tulsa is third in the hot MVC race with a 4-3 mark.

The committee announced that league commissioner, Norvall Neve, in discussions with Bradley coach Joe Stowell at Denton early Friday, indicated "there have been no violations of conference regulations involved."

Allen, Bradley's top scorer with an 18-point average, was arrested Jan. 17 in Peoria on a warrant obtained by Miss Sheila Starks of Chicago, mother of twins.

The amount of support was not given, but $300 was raised by Allen's mother and relatives in Chicago and turned over to the court. This reimbursed $300 which had been paid by a Bradley assistant coach when Allen was released on a personal bond of $2,000.

Allen, former Chicago high school star, must appear in circuit court for a review of the case on March 14, a week after Bradley finishes its regular season.

CITED AFTER STRIKING PARKED CAR
One driver was cited following a two-car accident in the 800 block of South Main street shortly after seven o'clock Friday evening.

According to a report filed by city police, an auto driven by Edward C. Clayton of 1903 Southview Court, and south-bound on South Main, struck a properly parked car.

The parked auto was owned by Robert Hawks of 839½ South Main. Clayton told police he heard a bump but did not think the parked car had been damaged.

He was cited for failure to do duty upon striking an unattended vehicle.

River To Crest At 17 Ft. Level

BEARDSTOWN — The Illinois river here is expected to reach a crest of 17 feet by February 14.

Tom Phelps, local weather observer, received the forecast Friday from St. Louis Weather Bureau.

Snow and rain here in the past several days have provided much-needed moisture for the farm area and has also been general enough to cause the river to rise.

Driver Attempts To Elude Police During Chase

A 19-year-old young man attempted to elude state police Friday morning about 8 o'clock but crashed into a utility pole and was taken to jail.

David R. Beddingfield, of 300½ South Main, headed south on South Main, was spotted by a state trooper who gave chase.

Beddingfield, according to police reports sped away and turned onto East Chambers and continued to South Clay where he attempted a right turn. In the process, his auto collided with a utility pole.

Beddingfield was not injured, but was taken to the county jail and issued a ticket for reckless driving and attempting to elude a police officer. A passenger in the auto also escaped injury and was not held by police.

Beddingfield is expected to appear in court at a latter date.
